VOLUME XII — Codices Rossici (1936)

Descripsit M. Sangin

269 pages | Leningrad (St. Petersburg): Academy of Sciences Library, Public Library (Saltykov-Schedrin), Hermitage + Moscow: Historical Museum, Lenin Library (Rumyantsev)

Vol. XII (Russia, 1936) is the only volume to include Russian-language astrological texts and a Latin manuscript — completing the series with a genuinely comparative cross-cultural perspective on how the Greek astrological heritage flowed outward into both the Slavic Orthodox world and the medieval Latin West.

Preface (pp. v–viii)

M. Sangin explains that this volume covers astrological manuscripts in Leningrad (Petropolitan) and Moscow libraries, most brought from Mount Athos monasteries by Arsenius Suchanov in 1655. He notes the unusual character of the Russian collection: many manuscripts date from the 15th–19th centuries and contain popular astrological, magical, and divinatory material in post-Byzantine Greek — parallel to the Athens collection (Vol. X). An appendix specimen of Russian astrology derived from Greek sources is included, plus a description of a Latin manuscript containing Arabic-translated astrological texts.

PART I: CATALOGUE

pp. 1–56 — I. Codices Petropolitani (Leningrad/St. Petersburg — Cods. 1–17)

Seventeen manuscripts from Leningrad libraries.

- Cod. 1 = Bibl. Acad. Scient. XX Aa-II (parchment, written 1448, ff. 2+201 — from the Iviron Monastery, Mount Athos): Contains:
    - Sextus Empiricus, Pyrrhoneiai Hypotypōseis (ff. 2v–162v): unexpectedly, the main text of this manuscript is the complete Outlines of Pyrrhonism — a philosophical sceptical text unrelated to astrology, but showing the eclectic nature of Byzantine manuscript collections

    - John Camaterus, verse treatise on the zodiac circle and the five planets, houses, triplicities, terms, aspects, and lots — addressed to the Emperor Manuel Komnenos (Peri tou zōidiakou kuklou kai tōn e' asterōn): the same text as in Petropolitan Cod. 1, ed. E. Miller, Notices et Extraits XXIII/2, pp. 40–112; variant readings edited in Appendix
    - Abu Ma'shar (Apomassar), extensive chapters (ff. 194–201): 28 numbered chapters from the Mysteria tradition — on the Moon square with Mars and sea voyages; on the conjunction of Saturn and Jupiter in Aries (a great ruler will be born); on the conjunction of the five planets watched by the Sun; on whether a prophet is truthful; on the religion of the Saracens originating astrologically from Libra; on the succession of dynasties; on the significations of planetary conjunctions; on the conjunction of Saturn and Jupiter in Aries; on the 12 houses; on rains; on illness and temperature; and much more (edited in Appendix)
- Cods. 2–5 = Bibl. Acad. Scient. (various call numbers, 15th–18th c.): Brief manuscripts with: astronomical tables; blood-letting calendars; medical lucky/unlucky days; planetary hour-rulers; Brontologion; Selenodromion; Easter computus
- Cod. 3 = Bibl. Publ. Gr. 74 (paper, 15th c., the major Public Library manuscript): A rich compilation. Contains:
    - John Camaterus verse treatise (another copy, with variant readings)
    - Praesagia de viris mulieribusque sub singulis signis natis (cf. Vol. X, Cods. 11 and 25): zodiac sign predictions for men and women — a further witness to this tradition
    - On the zodiac signs' elemental qualities; on planetary aspects; on friendship and enmity of the zodiac signs
    - Planetary hour-rulers (Sunday through Saturday) with hour-by-hour predictions
- Cod. 4 = Bibl. Publ. Gr. 116: Abu Ma'shar material; astronomical tables; blood-letting guidance
- Cods. 6–17 = Bibl. Publ. (various, 15th–19th c.): Popular medical and divinatory texts in late vernacular Greek; thunder-omen calendars (Brontologia); earthquake omens (Seismologia); lunar day-books (Selenodromia); blood-letting guidance; dietary calendars; Easter computus; moon-cycle tables; the Pythagorean life/death tablet; omen texts attributed to Ezra the prophet

pp. 57–80 — II. Codices Mosquenses (Moscow — Cods. 18–34)

Seventeen Moscow manuscripts from the Historical Museum and Lenin Library (Rumyantsev). Most important:

- Cod. 18 = Hist. Mus. gr. 399 (17th–18th c.): Contains: popular medical and electional material; on lunar days and their indications; blood-letting calendar; dietary calendar by month; on the nature of the four humours
- Cod. 27 = Hist. Mus. gr. 417 (17th–18th c.): Contains a complete Selenodromion (lunar day-book) — the 30-day lunar prognostic calendar from Day 1 through Day 30, with each day's omens and recommended activities; Brontologion by month; blood-letting guidance; Pythagorean psēphos
- Cod. 34 = Lenin Library (Rumyantsev) gr. 3 (15th c. — the most important Moscow manuscript): A systematic compilation including:
    - Planetary hour-rulers: complete table and text
    - Praesagia de viris mulieribusque from zodiac signs: yet another witness to this tradition
    - On the nature of the zodiac signs; on planetary aspects
    - Medical texts: Galen on surgery timing; critical day doctrine; blood-letting by the Moon
    - Thunder-omen calendar (Brontologion) — organized by month; also Brontologion organized by zodiac sign of the Moon
    - Selenodromion (lunar day-book)

PART II: APPENDIX — Critical Editions (pp. 81–255)

pp. 81–125 — From Cod. 1: Abu Ma'shar chapters and Camaterus variants

- Full edition of all 28 Abu Ma'shar chapters from Cod. 1 (ff. 194–201), with extensive cross-references to the Florentine, Roman, Venetian, and Parisian manuscripts
- Variant readings for John Camaterus's verse treatise from the Petropolitan witness

pp. 125–200 — From Cods. 3, 4, 27, 34: Popular astrological texts

- Praesagia de viris mulieribusque from Cod. 3 and Cod. 34 — editions with comparison to Athens Cods. 11 and 25, Munich Cod. 7, and Naples Cod. 19
- Planetary hour-rulers from Cod. 34 (with variants from Athens and other witnesses)
- Selenodromion from Cod. 27 (full edition of the 30-day lunar calendar)
- Brontologion from Cod. 34 (monthly thunder-omen calendar — full edition)
- Pythagorean life/death psēphos from Cod. 27

pp. 200–245 — Specimen of Russian Astrology

A remarkable addition unique to this volume: an edition of astrological texts in Russian derived from Greek sources — vernacular Russian translations and adaptations of the Byzantine astrological tradition. This specimen shows how Greek astrological knowledge passed into the Russian Orthodox cultural sphere, and preserves traces of astrological texts that have disappeared from the Greek manuscript tradition.

pp. 245–255 — Description of a Latin Manuscript

Description of a Latin manuscript containing Arabic-translated astrological texts (Albumasar, Messahallah, etc.) — an unusual comparative document showing the parallel Latin-Western transmission of the same Greek/Arabic astrological tradition.

pp. 255–269 — Indices

Index of Greek words (technical vocabulary of the popular astrological tradition); index of proper names; general index; table of contents.

PRAEFATIO

In hoc tomo Catalogi codices Petropolitani ex variis bibliothecis et Mosquenses, praecipue ab Arsenio Suchanov ex Athus Montis monasteriis anno 1655 asportati, describuntur.

Post editionem codicum Italicorum, Parisinorum, Germanicorum, Vindobonensium, Atheniensium, Hispaniensium non opus est, ut videtur, verbis confirmare quantam vim opera astrologica non solum ad philologiam, sed etiam ad scientiarum historiam exstruendam praebeant; superest fortasse dicere, quid in cognoscenda scientiarum popularium evolutione valeant. Libri manuscripti saec. xv ex.-xix. tractatus plerumque sine auctorum nomine traditos continent; qui cum recentiores sint, quaestioni profundae et gravi materiam dant: contextus ipse in litteris popularibus ad antiquitatem classicam ascendit, simulque universalitatem scientiae popularis per intellectuale commercium cum orientale, tum occidentale ostendit.

Disciplinarum vero popularium astrologia, quae omnes scientias, meteorologiam, medicinam, botanicam, incantationes magicas etc. in alveo suo concludit, ceteris praeponebatur. Praxis etiam astrologica hic adnotanda est, quae divinationibus mathematicis per numerum-substantiam rerum et invocationem daemoniacam (daemones enim numerum demonstrant et respondent) utitur; ideo in appendice non meri tantum astrologici tractatus, sed etiam exempla astromagica, divinationes mathematicae etc. eduntur.

Ad calcem appendicis specimen astrologiae Rossicae, ex Graecis fontibus derivatae, multa vestigia scriptorum Graeco-

PREFACE

In this volume of the Catalogue, the St. Petersburg codices from various libraries and the Moscow codices — brought chiefly by Arsenius Suchanov from the monasteries of Mount Athos in the year 1655 — are described.

After the publication of the Italian, Parisian, German, Viennese, Athenian, and Spanish codices, it seems unnecessary to reaffirm in words how great a contribution astrological works offer not only to philology but also to the construction of the history of the sciences; it remains, perhaps, to say what value they hold for understanding the evolution of popular scientific knowledge. Manuscript books from the late fifteenth through the nineteenth centuries generally contain treatises transmitted without the names of their authors; and since these are of more recent date, they furnish material for a profound and weighty inquiry: the very texture of popular literature reaches back to classical antiquity, while at the same time revealing the universality of popular knowledge through intellectual exchange with both the East and the West.

Among the popular disciplines, astrology — which encompasses all the sciences, meteorology, medicine, botany, magical incantations, and the like within its channel — held precedence over the rest. Also worthy of note here is astrological practice, which employs mathematical divinations through the numerical substance of things and demonic invocation (for demons both manifest number and give answers); accordingly, the appendix presents not merely astrological treatises in the strict sense, but also astromagical examples, mathematical divinations, and related material.

At the end of the appendix, a specimen of Russian astrology derived from Greek sources is published, preserving many traces of lost Greek writings.

rum deperditorum servantis publicatur. Additur quoque descriptio manuscripti astrologici Latini opuscula ex Arabico sermone translata continentis.

Codicibus Rossicis nunc absolutis, imprimis Prof. Fr. Cumont, qui et hanc descriptionem non solum in Catalogum Codicum astrologorum Graecorum inclusit, sed etiam plagulas omnes perlegit, multaque cum codicibus Romanis et editionibus contulit, Proff. I. J. Kračkovskj et V. I. Vernadskj, qui incepto nostro in Commissione Academica de Scientiarum Historia, nunc Instituto Historiae Scientiarum et Artium Technicarum, liberalissime faverunt, et adiutores studii nostri Proff. N. P. Lichačev, A. J. Malein, I. A. Byčkov gratissimo animo prosequimur.

M. Šangin.

This publication also preserves many vestiges of lost Greek writings. A description of a Latin astrological manuscript containing short works translated from Arabic is also appended.

Now that the Russian Codices have been completed, we extend our deepest gratitude first to Prof. Fr. Cumont, who not only included this description in the Catalogue of Greek Astrological Codices but also read through all the proofs and collated many passages with the Roman codices and editions; to Profs. I. J. Kračkovskj and V. I. Vernadskj, who most generously supported our undertaking in the Academic Commission on the History of Sciences, now the Institute for the History of Sciences and Technical Arts; and to our colleagues in this study, Profs. N. P. Lichačev, A. J. Malein, and I. A. Byčkov.

F. 484. Niketas of Seides, On Easter (The year was the thirty-ninth — [f. 490] Christ delivered the mystical Easter).

F. 490. A most accurate method dealing with Easter and the cycle of the Sun and Moon for [ie] years, as well as the leap year and the indiction (Know, O most wise one, that in finding the cycles of the Sun — [f. 491v] to attain the truth).

F. 492. Another method of the Moon: how one must find, for each day of any given month, its quantity, and likewise its birth and its waning (Add together its foundation that is then sought [f. 492v] or to the April [sic] the Easter).

F. 493. Another method of Apokrea (Add together the foundation which we mentioned before — either it is found thus or thus).

The number of the days of the forty-day fast of the Holy Apostles is found as follows (Count from the second day — and the days thereof).

On which day of the week each month begins, this is the method (Add together the foundation — not that of the Moon [F. 493] but also our own). F. 493. The foundations of the twelve months are these (March and November are the fifth; and the method for finding these is as follows. Add together with the first of the month under examination and the foundation of the Moon established from eternity, as you were taught above, and proceed accordingly.)

One must also know how the year was named "bissextile" — [f. 494] preparing the purifications in advance for themselves.

F. 494. The ancients also divided each day of each month — [f. 494v] state what comes before the Kalends.

F. 494. One must also know this: when you hear that the Moon is of so many days — in proportion to their magnitude. —– Cf. cod. Paris. 43, f. 317 sqq.; cod. Paris. 45, f. 105.

EXCERPTS FROM CODEX 1. (Bibl. Acad. Scient. XXAa-II).

Various readings on the poem of John Camaterus;

On the zodiac circle.

We note here examples of new readings from Academic codex I, which closely agrees with ms. Parisino A () (= Paris. 2506) even in errors (3).

I. More probable readings.

v. 514. τιμὴν (λιμήν codd., λύμην Miller); v. 694 ὑφος τε τιμῆς (τιμᾷ codd., Miller); v. 799 ἑβδομος... τόπος (ἑβδομον... τόπον codd., Miller, τόπου B); v. 972 τελεῖν θέλε (τηρεῖν θέλει codd., Miller); v. 1222 μαρτυρείτις (μαρτυρεί τε codd., Miller); v. 1254 κακούμενος δὲ κύριος (κακούμενος κύριος δὴ Miller, δὲ A et V, δὴ aut δ' ἡ Vergetius); v. 1354 ἀρήγοις (ἀρήγει A, Miller).

II. Hapax legomenon

v. 3 πορφυρόκλαστα ex corr.

III. New Readings.

Ad v. 170 περὶ κράσεως (-εων codd.); ad v. 207 ἐν οἷς χαίρουσιν (ἐφ' οἷς codd.); ad v. 324 περὶ ἀρρενικών (ἀῤῥένων codd.); v. 345 σὺν αὐτοῖς (σὺν αὐτῷ codd.); v. 653 ἔκτον δὲ τυχών (ἔκτω codd.); v. 686 λυτικοί (λυτικὸς codd.); v. 987 τυχόν (τυχὼν codd.); v.1013 πλήρωσιν ἔργων (πλήρωσιν ἔργῳ codd.); v. 1209 περὶ τοῦ ὁμοζύγου (παρά codd.); v. 1279 πόλου (πόλοις codd.), v. 1346 τῶνδε (τῷδε codd.).

In particles: v. 444 τε post φίλων (δὲ codd.).

In transposition of words: v. 77, μόνος μόνου (μόνου μόνος); v. 1339 τῷ τόπω φθάσας τούτω (τῷ τόπῳ τούτῳ φθάσας Miller, τούτῳ om. codd.; Vergetius in marg. τούτῳ).

Lectiones orthographicae: v. 60 ἀγάγοι (ἀγάγει codd.); v. 480 et 502 φθάσης post μέχρι (φθάσεις codd.); v. 942 τυγχάνειν (τυγχάνει codd.); v. 1354 χεῖρα (χεῖραν codd.).

IV. Correctiones.

v. 249 πρώτη supra πρώτου (πρώτη Miller); v. 1201 σε χρὴ supra σοι (σε codd., Miller); v. 1239 ἀγαθῷ supra ἀγαθοῦ (ἀγαθῷ codd., Miller).

Praeterea in codice Academico 19 lectiones invenimus, cum correctionibus Vergetii in cod. V congruentes, quarum sex a Miller reiectae sunt: v. 164 ὥραν in cod. V ex corr. ad ἡμέραν; v. 416 ἀπόκλιμα ex corr.; v. 941 ἤ τις τ' ad marg. V; v. 973 ζωδιακῶς ad marg. V.; v. 978 ἐξ ὄπισθεν ad marg. V.; v 1008, εἰ τ' οὖν ad marg. V.; v. 467 κρείττων; v. 1081 κακοποιῶ; ex quo apparet collationes Vergetii et codicem Academicum ex archetypo eiusdem familiae derivata esse.

Orthographic readings: vv. 60 ἀγάγοι (ἀγάγει codd.); v. 480 et 502 φθάσης post μέχρι (φθάσεις codd.); v. 942 τυγχάνειν (τυγχάνει codd.); v. 1354 χείρα (χειραν codd.).

IV. Corrections.

v. 249 πρώτη above πρώτου (πρώτη Miller); v. 1201 σε χρή above σοι (σε codd., Miller); v. 1239 ἀγαθῷ above ἀγαθοῦ (ἀγαθῷ codd., Miller).

Furthermore, in the Academic codex we found 19 readings that agree with Vergecius's corrections in cod. V, of which six were rejected by Miller: v. 164 ὥραν in cod. V corrected to ἡμέραν; v. 416 ἀπόκλιμα by correction; v. 941 ἤ τις τ' in the margin of V; v. 973 ζωδιακώς in the margin of V; v. 978 ἐξ ὄπισθεν in the margin of V; v. 1008 εἰ τ' οὖν in the margin of V: v. 467 κρείττων; v. 1081 κακοποιώ; from which it is clear that the collations of Vergecius and the Academic codex are derived from an archetype of the same family.

From the books of the Mysteries of Apomasar (*).

F. 194. β' (lib. II, cap. 4). Concerning the fact that when Saturn travels in conjunction with Jupiter, if someone happens to be born and has the sign where such a conjunction is rising as the ascendant or culminating at midheaven, such a person will become a great king.

Apomasar said: the conjunctions of Saturn and Jupiter hold great mysteries; if therefore someone is born on the day of a conjunction and his ascendant happens to be the sign where such a conjunction occurred, or his midheaven, he will become a great king and his name will be renowned everywhere.

F. 195. γ' (lib. II, cap. 6). Concerning the fact that if the three superior planets come together and the Sun looks upon them, they produce great kings.

Apomasar said that the conjunction of the five stars is possible, but I have never seen it, nor indeed has anyone else told me that they have seen it; yet I heard learned elders saying that it produces great kings when it occurs at the birth of someone. And John, the son of Apomusur, said that when the three superior planets come together and the Sun looks upon them, it is a great conjunction and produces great kings.

F. 196 ϛ' (lib. II, cap. 9). On the Success of Revolt.

10 Apomasar said that every rebel who undertakes a revolt at the beginning of a millennium will succeed in seizing power (*).

F. 196. ζ' (lib. II, cap. 10). On what the minor conjunctions signify, namely of Mars and the Sun and Venus, and of Mercury and the Moon.

Apomasar said: do you know what Masala said about the minor conjunctions? I said to him: no. Tell me then that he calls the conjunction of Mars and the Sun and Venus and Mercury and the Moon the minor conjunctions; when therefore Mars and the Sun conjoin [f. 197] in a fiery sign, there will be burning heat and hot and dry diseases, unless a benefic planet looks on; but when Venus and Mercury conjoin with the Sun, it signifies glory for scribes and harm for the elderly.

When Mercury travels with the Moon at a time of change, it signifies the power of the common people. He also said this: that when Saturn and Jupiter travel together in Aries, the rebels will prevail and the rulers will become wicked.

5 F. 197, θ' (lib. II, cap. 12). On the 12 Places.

Albumasar also said this: that the first angle is the ascendant, and the second is the midheaven, though it is more manifest; among the succeedent houses the eleventh place is the strongest, then the second, then the eighth; among the cadent houses the strongest 10 is the ninth place, then the third, while the sixth and the twelfth are adverse.

F. 197, ι. On of clothing,

Albumasar said that the eleventh place signifies cloth-15 ing and adornment and beautification and the prosperities from friends and love affairs. He also said this: that Venus signifies especially the affairs of the kings of the west.

F. 197, ια' (lib. II, cap. 13). On Rains.

Albumasar said: observe the star that rules the 20 region in which you intend to learn about rains, and also the sign belonging to that region, and learn whether that region is dry or whether continuous rains occur in it or moderate ones; if indeed rains occur in it: when you see the Moon in a watery sign and it applies to Venus in a watery 25 sign, rains will occur. And if the Sun at that time happens to be opposing Saturn, the rains will be close to a flood. Learn also the ascendants of the conjunctions and the full moons for each month; for these too signify matters concerning rains and drought.

The same author said: the conjunction of the Sun and Saturn in winter signifies great cold, while the conjunction of the Sun and Mars at the time of spring in a bicorporeal sign signifies darkening of the air and diseases due to the irregularities of the stars.

5 F. 1975, XII (lib. II, cap. 14). On the fact that the signification of the zodiac signs is more powerful than the signification of the stars, and that when the twelfth place happens to be afflicted with a malefic planet there, the feet are harmed even if the zodiac signs signifying the legs and feet are in good condition, and that sometimes Aries also signifies the feet.

I said to Albumasar: which signification is more powerful, that of the zodiac signs or that of the stars? He told me that it is that of the zodiac signs, and that the signification of the zodiac signs surpasses the signification of the stars by as much as the gold coin surpasses the silver miliaresion. I said to Albumasar: since you hold this opinion, why is it that when a royal sign happens to be rising on the ascendant, but its lord happens to be in decline, it does not signify a good king? He told me that you do wrong to the art by raising such objections; for Aries signifies kings who love justice and those who work for the benefit of their subjects; but this signification is particular, while universally it signifies infants and children and the beginnings of birth, and it signifies the head and face of a person, and in some charts it also signifies the feet. I said to him: you say something strange — how does Aries signify matters of the feet? He answered me that when the ascendant happens to be in Libra, the seventh place falls in Aries, and the seventh place in every nativity signifies matters of the feet; so when it happens in this way, Aries signifies matters of the feet. Take note also of everything I am about to say, for this is inviolable:

When a malefic planet happens to be in the twelfth place of the native, it always causes suffering in the feet or the legs or weakness, even if Aquarius, which signifies matters concerning the legs, is benefited, and even if Pisces, which signifies [1. 1583] matters concerning the feet, is benefited; but if these too are afflicted with malefic planets being in the twelfth place, it causes paralysis of the feet; and if someone is found having Aries as the ascendant, and if Mars or its lord or its exaltation ruler happens to be in a declining place and there is no good configuration in the chart, nevertheless he will be good-natured and fair of face and beloved by all and having kingly manners, and the signification of the sign is lasting, while that of the stars is changeable.

F. 1987, εδ' (= Aug. 29, f. 44v; lib. II, cap. 16). On a Certain Result That Seemed Paradoxical.

20 Albumasar said: I saw a scholar named Sindon, who calculated the nativity of Jacob the son of Isaac and produced a strange result. Mercury was the apheta and happened to be in Scorpio; Jupiter was in the twenty-second degree of Cancer. I computed the journey of Mercury to the degree diametrically opposite to Jupiter, or to his depression, and I also computed the journey of the apheta to the degree in square with Mercury, and the conjunction fell at the same time, and he called it a climacteric, as he said.

Sadan (1) said that he heard Abu Ma'shar saying that all life of living beings, after God, is the Sun and the Moon; for we find nativities that have no aphetas, but the Sun and the Moon overseeing the horoscope in trine and sextile aspect; and if the horoscope happens to be unafflicted, those born in such a manner live for the longest time. For I have seen many nativities having neither aphetas nor anetas; yet those born live for the longest time. But if you find a nativity and the aphetas happens to be the ascending degree, and the horoscope is in Gemini, and Mercury happens to be in Taurus, and the benefics happen to be in a bad place, and you find Saturn in Scorpio, and Mars in Aquarius, the native will not reach the minimum years of Venus. He also told me this: that Mars, when it dominates a nativity and conjoins some benefic, signifies that the one who has such a nativity will suffer a fire; but Saturn, when it dominates a nativity and does not conjoin a benefic, signifies nothing good.

The same author said: whenever Saturn happens to be in Libra and Jupiter in Cancer, they produce great changes in the world.

F. 200, 25 (lib. II, cap. 30). On of adversaries.

The same [author] said: if someone asks you about adversaries in a lawsuit, if the lord of the ascendant is found retrograde or under the rays [of the Sun], he will be defeated by his adversary; but if the lord of the seventh place is found in such a condition, his adversary will be defeated.

F. 2004, 26 (lib. II, cap. 31). On the fact that the Lot of Fortune, measured along the diameter of the Sun and Moon, 10th has no power.

I said to Apomasar: "Tell me, my lord, when the Sun is in opposition to the Ascendant and the Moon happens to be in the Ascendant, and you take the degrees between the Sun and the Moon and project them from the Ascendant, where does the Lot of Fortune fall?" He answered me that such a Lot has no power when it is in opposition to the Ascendant, nor does it produce any effect.

F. 65. Maxims of Leo the Wise.

Maxims. A poem of Leo the Wise having such numerical letter-values: ten letters α.α.α. γ.γ. ε.ε.ε. ζ. θ speaks thus: these ten letters produce a numerical sum of forty; from these ten letters, whoever can separate five letters and make them twenty, is worthy of note.

Another by the same. Three letters ϕ. ω. ς. I stand in the middle of the earth and the pole, I am three-lettered and monosyllabic, my numerical value is one thousand five hundred, and he who understands me is wise in letters, and he who does not know it does not know the word.

Another of the same. Five letters: a. g. a. p. e.
I am higher than men and more brilliant than the sun,
I have five letters and three syllables, my numerical value is three and ninety.

A. g. a. p. e. Otherwise. I am higher than men and more brilliant than the sun (this does not refer to Christ, nor to the All-Holy One). It has five letters, the numerical value of the letters is ninety-three; thus it was written.

F. 141. On the herb anemostrouklio.

This herb, the anemostrouklio, is a thistle, and its shoot is eaten, and its flower is yellow, and when its flower falls off, white hairs remain, and the wind blows and they go into the air. This herb has the following property: you should go to Saint George's from the evening, sleep there until morning at the hour of church, and at that hour rise and dig around it and pour good wine on its root and say the "Our Father" three times, and gaze at it for a long time, and as if by miracle the herb moves, and you at the moment when it moves should pull it out, and whatever person carries it,

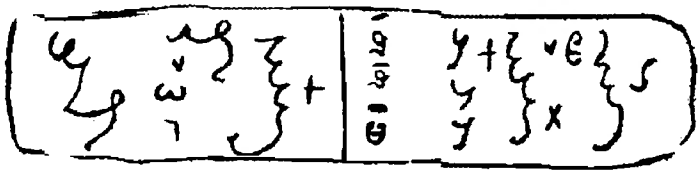
F. 145. On how to burn the spleen [treat] the sick person.

Lay the person on their back and lift their clothes and leave only the shirt, and on top of the shirt only place paper like the spleen of a person, and take a special spoon and put necessary coals inside, and on top of the coals place the characters written below, and on top of the characters place another coal in between so that they burn intensely; for if they are slow to burn, the person will suffer pain, and when they are burning, you say the "Our Father"; do this during the waning of the Moon.



Two chapters of an anonymous astrologer.

1. An excerpt containing a disputation on the Sun and Moon against ignorant astrologers, who say that the seven planets do not move seven heavens of the planets, and it demonstrates the lunar cycles. The agreement of this little work with the "Physiologus" is noteworthy. Cf. the description of the griffin in Epiphanius's treatise On the Physiologus (Mystoxides, Sylloge Hellenikon Anekdoton, May, notebook 2, Venice 1816, p. 13), which agrees almost word for word with this excerpt.

2. In the excerpt on the nine heavens, noteworthy are the names of the planets Phainon, Phaethon, Pyroeis, etc., which from approximately the third century BC were used by astrologers and employed throughout the so-called Alexandrian age, but were already obsolete in the time of the astrologer Ptolemy, and were repeated by the Byzantines only through an affectation of erudition. I. F. 154. The zodiac circle moves obliquely, divided into 12 segments, which are called signs of the zodiac; each sign has three decans and 30 degrees, and each degree has 60 minutes. The sky therefore has 365 degrees, the hemisphere above the earth 182 and a half, and the hemisphere below the earth 182 and a half.

These are the nine spheres of the heaven and the zones of the seven [1.155] planets. Some are puzzled about their motion and why they were named planets; we answer and say that they mislead people by their motion, since all the heavens and the stars move from east to west, while these seven alone do not, but move from west to east. People observing this and not understanding their motion are misled; for this reason they named them planets, thinking that they too travel westward, when in fact they do not go westward but eastward. Neither the Sun,nor the Moon, nor the stars walk about, as some of the ignorant say; rather, as the heaven revolves from the upper parts above the earth, it carries round the Sun, the Moon, and the stars, and at night it carries the Sun beneath the earth, and as the heaven revolves from above it also brings the Sun round at the rising in Eden, to the highest part of the earth, opposite Paradise, and there a winged bird meets the Sun; its name is griffin, its height two hundred cubits, seated opposite male horses, and it sprinkles the rays of the Sun so as not to burn the earth; it is scorched and its feathers fall off, and then it bathes again in the river Nile and becomes as it was at first, and so it does every day [1.155v]; and within its wing the rooster is contained, and knows the hour and crows. The throne of God has 365 gates, and it travels each day through one gate, and thus it travels every day, and the Sun receives its light from the throne of God, and the Moon from the Sun. The Sun is in the fourth heaven and the Moon in the lower heaven, in the one visible to us, and they meet one another, and then the Moon is illuminated by the of the Sun, and when they separate from it; then the Moon appears toward the west. Conjunction is the name given to the Moon when it is directly opposite the Sun; then it receives light from it and is illuminated; it is called "ene" when it is 15 degrees distant from the Sun; rising is said to occur when it is 30 degrees distant from the Sun; then its beginning appears to us; crescent-shaped it is called when it has not yet become full at its beginning and is 60 degrees distant from the Sun; half-moon it is called when it is divided at the middle, half full and half convenient, and is 90 degrees distant from the Sun; gibbous it is called when it is more than half full, being 135 degrees distant from the Sun; nearly full moon, when it is close to becoming full, being 150 degrees distant from the Sun. Full moon it is called when it is entirely full, being 180 degrees distant from the Sun [f. 156]. Know also this, that the Moon from its first rising until it reaches half is moist by nature; from the half until it becomes full, it is entirely warm; from the full until it again wishes to reach half, it is dry; and from the second half until it is completed, cold.

II. F. 158. We have said above that there are nine zones of heaven, and in the ninth sphere the 12 zodiac signs are formed with 12 stars of the months and they govern the heaven; in them the Sun and the Moon move, and in the middle it has one and only one star with it, as we have recorded above.

In the eighth sphere are the 38 fixed and great stars, and they have influences upon the winds and upon rains and snow and upon other effects.

And in the seventh sphere moves the star Saturn, which they also call Phainon, and its cycle moves through 38 years before it returns to its original position. And in the sixth sphere is the star Jupiter, which is also called Phaethon, and it too traverses such a sphere in 12 years.

In the fifth sphere moves Mars, which they also call Pyroen, and it too traverses such a sphere

5 is also called Phosphorus and Hesperus, because when it rises before the Sun, it is called Phosphorus, but when it appears in the west in the evening, it is called Hesperus; it too completes such a sphere in 8 months.
Further below in the second sphere is the planet Mer-10 cury, also named Stilbon, and it too completes such a sphere in 6 months and 7 days.
And in the first sphere, that is, below, is the Moon. It too travels such a sphere in 29 and a half days.

EXCERPTS FROM CODEX 3.

(Cod. Mus. Palaeogr. Acad. Scient.)

F. 41. Signs of when there will be winds and rains (4).

When the Sun trembles and rises, <if> a red cloud appears, it signifies rain either on that day or within three days.

And when the sun sets and has a dark cloud above it, it signifies rain.

And when the Sun sets, <if> it has a cloud and the rays of the Sun are split, it portends winter.

10 When you see many stars at night, know this: on the following day either wind occurs or rain, and from the direction where you see the stars scattering, from that direction the wind will rise.

[f. 414] When you see clouds raining all day long and they scatter like wool, it signifies rain.

15 When it is raining and you see where the drops fall and bubbles form in the water, know that heavy and strong rain is coming.

When you see a candle that is burning and making as if halo, know that rain is coming with a south wind.

20 When you see birds bathing in the dust, it signifies either rain or winter.

When frogs croak incessantly, it signals rain for you.

When the green frog climbs up onto the grass and croaks, it indicates rain.

When swallows wet their wings in the water, it indicates rain.

When the ox turns its head and looks around, it indicates rain.

When the crow sits in a tree and preens itself, it indicates rain.

10 When you see the hen and the rooster preening themselves, it indicates rain or snow.

[f. 42] When the crow caws, it indicates rain.

When you see ravens and jackdaws making where they fly a great clamor and noise, it indicates rain.

When you see the pot and take it off the fire and it has many sparks all around it, it indicates rain.

When you see the Sun making a second arc within the clouds, it indicates rain or wind.

When you see it is summer and lightning occurs in some direction, 20 expect wind from that direction.

When you see that during the autumn season lightning strikes in some part of the earth, expect great fair weather, so that there will be neither wind nor rain.

When you see a star with a tail, expect abundant winds.
25 And if two or three of these stars appear, expect much rainfall in the region of the west or in the northern region.

[f. 424] When you see lightning and it thunders in winter, the quick rain that follows will last a long time.

Take a clean silver tablet and engrave on it with a black-handled knife and write these names: "Tintafakil Malatial Zouar and after Sabaoth and Boiathor polygegrammenin Goel drink the side and you drink ara Chrionsoul Andaipi," and when you have engraved these on the tablet, smear human blood over it and at once bury this tablet in the place they point to and say the treasure is, and that night guard the place securely; and if something appears like a lamp, stay there; know that the treasure is hidden there, and dig and take it out; but if it does not appear to you the first night, remain until seven days and abstain from all things and pray to the Lord God, and you shall see what you desire; but if no lamp appears, there is nothing there.

On peony and rue.

1. That this treatise on peony was drawn from a Hermetic book is attested by the invocation itself παιωνία τρισμέγιστε μήτερ τῶν βοτάνων. This form of Ερμηνείας τῆς βοτάνης, partly modified in Byzantine practice, closely corresponds to the discoveries of treasure through λεκανομαντείαν. This chapter of the Rossicus codex on peony is to be connected with the short works published in Cata-logo astrol. VIII, 1, p. 187 sqq. et VIII, 2, p. 167 ss.; XI, 2, p. 164 ss.

2. Under the name of a certain Theophilus, which is revealed by the superscription τοῦ αὐτοῦ σοφωτάτου καὶ Θεοφίλου περὶ πηγάνου, this little work on rue, containing the discovery of the herb and a popular incantation, is read in the codex.

Whether this little work belongs to some other Theophilus or to that Curidalei who is mentioned in the marginal note of the codex at f. 53 is not clear.

C. 475.

On Peony.

When you wish to pull it from the earth, one must extract it on a favorable day of the Moon, the fifth, and you should prepare as follows: namely, you should take with you a young boy and a little bread and honey and salt and barley, a priest, a candle [f. 48] and coals with incense, and take dust from the four corners of the altar of the Lord after the Trisagion, and when you are about to pull it up, name it for every useful purpose and take the dust and the honey and the salt and the barley and the bread and a hoe and dig the earth around the plant in a circle and make a pit, but do not cut its roots intentionally, and light the coals and add the incense, then throw those things mentioned above down into the pit around the herb and censed over it, the priest performs the eulogy and trisagion and the apolytikion and kontakion of the Theotokos; then he uprooted it, rubbed barley and salt over it and began the supplication: "Holy, holy, holy Lord Sabaoth, full" and say thus: "Paeonia, thrice-greatest, mother of herbs, sacred priestess, sanctifying all, immortal angel of the Father, boasting beyond measure, from above fell [1.484] Oroēl, Ereēl, Arsikos, Rie Koirnae Krone, and with him the fullness is made operative upon the priestess, so that her graces may be within her, which are the communions of the priestess, for the healing of all, for the healing of the priestess."

The fruit of it benefits priests when present with a little salt, and place it in a linen cloth and when the chill comes upon the person, wash him with water three times and rub him with the fruit and give it to drink, and he is healed by the grace of God.

Concerning paeonia.

The herb called glycysidion is paeonia. The remedy of this herb is as follows: One whose tongue is bound is fumigated with its root, and from its seed seven berries are to be drunk, and from the root likewise the same, and let him carry upon himself some of the root and of its seed, and the binding of the tongue is loosed, and the one who carries its root shall fear no more; and on the road he shall not lose himself and he shall not fear wild beasts.

Another [remedy] for one possessed by a demon. [f. 49] If one fumigates its leaves and root, no evil will enter his house; and when you drive the demon away from his extremity, fumigate it, and flee. Likewise, castoreum — the testicle — has the same virtue, and one who drinks the seed of peony with wine is heal

When you wish to cut the rue for any enmity that 10 you have and you wish your enemies to love you, especially those you fear, and for all peace and love with great men and women, on a Monday or Thursday [f. 497] before sunrise let us go to the place where it is found, and you make the sign of the precious cross over the rue 15 and say the Trisagion, the "Our Father" and the first according to John (1, 1 – 1, 17) [f. 50] "st. m. k. l. st. m. m. t. ph. b. thu amen amen", and also the "Theotokos and Virgin, rejoice, O full of grace Mary, the Lord" and so on.

I adjure you, rue, in the name of the Father and of the Son and 20 of the Holy Spirit, perfect God and perfect man; so that that person who shall divide you or who shall spread you or who shall [f. 50] eat you, may not be able to love anyone other than me, so-and-so, and just as a mother loves her child and a dog loves its master, so may that one love me and be well-disposed 25 toward me, he who shall be touched on account of you, who shall divide you and who shall eat you.

I adjure you, herb and plant rue, in the name of the ever-Virgin Mary the Theotokos and in Lord Adoni Elisabaoth and his son and our master Jesus Christ.

I adjure you also by the nine orders of angels and archangels and by the twelve apostles and by the four evangelists Matthew, Mark, Luke and John. That man, who marks you, who touches you, who divides you, who eats you — 5 may his heart burn toward me as kindling in the fire and as chaff, which was a sign unto him.
I adjure you, herb rue, by the seven gifts of the Holy Spirit and by the ten commandments and by the twelve ordinances and by the holy creed and by the wisdom of Solomon 10 [f. 51] and by the four parts of the world and by the power and grace of all herbs and worthless stones, and by the grace of the great God.
Hear me, herb rue, I speak to you that you may have the grace to make that man, who marks you, touches you, spreads you 15 and who divides you, unable to eat until he sees me, and just as the world cannot stand without the sun, so too may that man not stand without me.
Again I adjure you, herb rue, by the fourteen thousand infants who were slaughtered for Christ and 20 by his prayers and intercessions, may you be blessed for that one who mixes you, or who eats you, or who divides you — may he be held and bound to my will, and by the power and grace of our Lord Jesus Christ may you fulfill my desire as I wish, and just as 25 the life of man cannot stand without blood, so too may that certain man [f. 51v] not stand without my love,
I adjure you again, rue, by the seven planets and by the twelve signs of the zodiac and by the Sun and by the Moon and by all the stars of heaven and by the river Jordan, by 30 heaven and by the earth and by the four rivers of the Preces magicae christianae.

In ff. 52-53 huius codicis ritus legitur magicus, huiusce modi: preces dicit scriptor ad deum Iudaïcum et psalmos, deinde vertit se ad planetam (scil. ad Solem, qui πάντα κρύμματα κεκρυμμένα dilucidat) et intuetur eum, denique incantamenta effatur, ut ostendatur κρυπτόν.

of Paradise: Pishon, Gihon, Tigris, Euphrates, and by the staff of Aaron, and by the patriarchs Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and by God who made heaven and earth.

Whatever person eats you, or whoever divides you, or whoever touches you, may he not be able to stand without me, so-and-so, and may he not be able to eat, nor to do anything, nor to sleep, until my will is fulfilled in what I need and want from that one, whether man or woman, whomever I so-and-so touch. And when you say all these things over where the herb is, cut from it as much as you wish, and give it to the one upon whom you wish to place it in food, in drink, or wherever you can, and take care to do it secretly [1.52] in your service and let no one hear you or understand it, and say when you cut it: just as the rue is cut and its fragrance comes to me, so may the heart of so-and-so be cut in love for me, and may his heart and his love come to me.

Christian magical prayers.

In ff. 52–53 of this codex a magical rite is found, of the following kind: the writer addresses prayers to the Jewish God and the psalms, then turns toward a planet (namely the Sun, which illuminates πάντα κρύμματα κεκρυμμένα — all hidden secrets) and gazes upon it, and finally utters incantations, so that the κρυπτόν — the hidden thing — may be revealed.

You must know, O man, because of all the things that have been described in this supreme and first and greatest and final interpretation, which ought to be written at the beginning of the book, but by mistake is written as it stands, it appears as a copy. It is thus beneficial whenever you wish to perform any necessary task. Take heed of yourself so that you pray to God wholeheartedly, first before you undertake anything, and with a contrite and pure heart say these things:

Lord our God Adouni, Elisabaoth, Lamech, Sante, Lamantou, Chamantan. Tetragrammaton, the beginning and end, holy, holy, holy, Lord Sabaoth, full is heaven and earth of your glory, Our Father who art in the heavens, let us be strengthened through your holy names, holy Lord and God Sabaoth, through the prayers of your holy forefathers Enos, Gedad, Meleел, Methuselah, Seth, Enoch, Noah, Melchizedek, Joshua son of Nave, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob and David and Jesse, Solomon and Rehoboam, through the prayers of your holy ones, Lord our God, be a gracious savior, my shield and my helper.

Then also recite this psalm 120: "I lift up my eyes to the hills, from where my help will come" to the end.

Psalm 69 and the "O God, attend to my aid" and the "Lord, hear my prayer" — psalm 142. And then turn to the planet and observe.

And then say the prayers that are written after those already written above: "But I write, I say these things to you, O reader, thus says the Lord: no one can serve two masters; and again: you cannot serve God and mammon; but for you, O sacred head, let him choose what is hidden."

F. 56. For a matter in which you have lost something and wish to learn the thief, recite this psalm, chapter 16: "Hear, O Lord, my righteousness. " When you lose something, write down the names of those you suspect, then go and take earth from the handles of pots, and read the psalm 7 times; wrap each piece of paper with a little clay from that earth, and place each person's name in one, and let the papers [f.56] be equal in weight and let them stand; then take water from a place where the sun does not shine, and when you take the water do not speak with anyone; then place all those papers so that they are submerged in the water, and watch carefully, and whichever paper comes out first from the water and rises to the top, that person is the thief.

In a storm at sea, read this psalm, chapter 64: "Praise is due to you, O God, in Zion," read it; but if you do not know it, write it down and keep it, along with the character below; then take olive oil and go to the stern or the prow of the ship and pour seven drops into the sea and say these things and make the sign of the cross wet — with Christ they said: "Be silent, be proclaimed, the Lord," etc. Another: also read chapter 68, the psalm "Save me, O God, for the waters have come up to my soul," etc. Amen, amen.

Astrologicae praxis canon.

This treatise, the canon of astrological practice, which is found in many Greek codices from the 12th century up to the 15th century, contains five chapters: 1) the astrological definition of the members of the body, 2) the twenties and days of the planets, 3) the mathematical definition of a person's nativity by the numbers of the months (1), 4) physiognomy according to the planets, and 5) a zodiacal treatise.

F. 61. All things destined and found to occur from the birth of a person, discovered by wise and learned men of Egypt, for each month and zodiac sign.

When a man is born and likewise a woman, let us first go <to the astrologers>, and they say how the 12 signs of the zodiac govern the human being, with each sign ruling two and a half days, as the Egyptians say, or each month accordingly, all 5 the signs govern the human being, and each one governs one of the parts of the human body, and they say that the first, which is the head, is governed by the so-called Aries, the shoulders by Gemini, the hands by Taurus, the joints by Cancer, the heart by Leo, the sides by Virgo, the thighs by Libra, the intestines by Scorpio, 10 the upper legs by Sagittarius, the knees by Capricorn, the lower legs by Aquarius, the extremities of the human body by Pisces; but we <do not> follow this, but rather as the creator and maker.

There are also seven planets [f. 61], such stars <rule> or zones <> the seven heavens, and see also their names and signs as follows: 1st zone Saturn, Saturday; <2nd> zone Jupiter, Wednesday; <3rd> zone Mars, Tuesday; <4th zone> Venus, Friday; <5th> zone Mercury, Thursday; <6th zone> the Sun, Sunday; <7th> zone the Moon, Monday; and know that there are seven, they dwell within the 12 zodiac signs and act upon the good and the bad, upon the fortune and misfortune of man, of the earth, of the air, of fire, of water, and so on likewise.

If you wish then to find your fortune and you do not know the month and on what day of it you were born, do as follows: first write the names of your father and your mother and your own or of whomever you wish to know, and then count the numerical values of the letters to see how many values the sum of these three makes; and if they come to 10, 11, 12, 13; and if the values come to 13, he has the 1st sign, that is Aries; and if they come to 14 [f. 62], he has the 2nd sign, that is Taurus; and if he has 15, he has the 3rd sign, that is Gemini; and if he has 16, he has the 4th sign, that is Cancer; and if it be

One must also know this — to observe the person, and according to his appearance, such also is the nature of the planet under which he was born at the hour of each one, and Saturn (1) signifies and produces such men: dark-complexiδned, with sparse beards, deep-set eyes, gloomy, quick, prone to tears, liars, wanderers, contemptuous, secretly wicked, hypocrites, feigning piety, solitary and ecclesiastical, but in all things sluggish. Zeus makes them dignified, of good stature, broad-browed, large-headed, good, generous to friends, helpers to all.

20 Mars signifies merchants, large-eyed, swift, hardworking, bold, not to be despised, suspicious warriors, those who suffer hardship, men of natural disposition, adulterers, heavy drinkers, and some soldiers and schemers, according to the observation of the figure.

The Sun signifies those of fair appearance and beautiful eyes, angelic, De septem herbis planetarum.

Capitula de septem herbis, quamvis cum codice Monac. 70 (Catal. VIII, 2, p. 154 sqq.) in precibus planetarum partim congruant, praeter frustula de Saturni et Solis herbis a Delatte ex cod. Harleiano 5596 Brit. Mus. publicata (v. Anecd. Athen. I, p. 444 sqq.) editoribus ignota sunt; quae cum vestigia antiquitatis conservant, ad archetypum restituendum magni sunt momenti.

swift, truthful, given to traveling, proportionate in bodily stature. Venus signifies those who are tall in stature, full of dignity, dark-complexioned, small-eyed, magnanimous, wealthy, cheerful, beloved, bearing a venereal mark on the mouth like blisters.

Mercury indicates those who have freckles on their face or on the whole body, who are nimble and quick in speech and eloquent, liars, literate and stammerers, fond of feasting, bankers and lawyers.

The Moon indicates those who are fair-skinned, have thick legs, broad-shouldered, stout and short, with fine eyes, sociable with women and bright-eyed.

On the Seven Herbs of the Planets.

Chapters on seven herbs, although they partly agree with the codex Monac. 70 (Catal. VIII, 2, p. 154 sqq.) in the prayers of the planets, apart from the fragments on the herbs of Saturn and the Sun published by Delatte from cod. Harleiano 5596 Brit. Mus. (see Anecd. Athen. I, p. 444 sqq.) are unknown to editors; since these preserve traces of antiquity, they are of great importance for restoring the archetype.

Without doubt these small works on the seven herbs, like others of this kind, belong to the Hermetica.

Among the common words some Latin ones such as ὀφφίκια γερέβης (cf. officia gerere) are noteworthy.

<Herb of Saturn>

[F. 99] Explanation. When you wish to gather the herb to which the assigned zodiac sign belongs, first recite the prayer of the planet, then of the angel of that day and hour on bended knees and with great reverence (f. 99r), taking care to be watchful and to be pure from intercourse or from emission, and take care that the Moon is at its proper degree so that it corresponds with the zodiac sign of the herb, and pull it up and place it outside under the stars for seven evenings to observe astronomically. Have ready also the incenses for each one according to the explanation that is given before in the usage, <and> keep it in truth; and there are also seven heavens of three each, and each zodiac sign stands in one heaven, for this reason it has its virtue. Sequitur precatio iam edita, vide Catal. Astrol. VIII, 2, p. 172-173.

< Herb of Hermes >

Image of the herb of Mercury. (cf. Tab. 1, 6).

5 [F. 101] The herb of Mercury is called pentadactylon. Gather it in its proper hour when Mercury rules, on Wednesday, with its prayer, and place its root wrapped in horse hide to stand for three nights so that you may observe the stars, as is written below; then [f. 101v] carry the root wrapped in horse hide, and it will bring about reconciliations and domestic unions with great men and women, with kings and queens, and it will establish good relations, and gifts and benefits are ordained through it. Place its flowers in oil and anointing the eyes with it, every work you undertake will prosper; its seeds, thirty grains placed for twelve days in water, heal epilepsy and madness; the root eaten with wine or vinegar also produces eloquence; the juice of the leaf mixed with oil and applied heals leprosy, chilblains, and all such ailments.

20 ’Another. He who takes some of the seed of this herb and wraps it in linen cloth and holds it in his hand is victorious in every kind of game. Place its seed in wolf hide and carry it and bind it to the right arm, and in critical matters you will always win.

25 Another. The herb is to be gathered in the hour of Mercury, and wrap it [f. 102] in the hide of a black cat along with 3, 5, 7 grains of pepper, and carrying it on the arm one will become—you will be invisible to the man who seeks you, and wherever you go into battle you will be fearless everywhere. On the fourth day Hermes himself rules at the 1st hour and the 2nd and the 8th and the 9th and the 15th and the 22nd; he is beneficial on every journey and for wisdom and knowledge and change and for opening the vein of the earth; but if one is betrothed under this star, he will have another's marriage. It is also beneficial for drinking on account of matters concerning a man who has been abandoned, and for dangers at sea, and for subduing spirits within a circle, and for movement on a journey.

Here is also his prayer. Sequitur precatio, vide Catal. astr. VIII, 2, p. 156-157.

Take the leaves, dry them, grind them, and with holy water give to drink for abdominal pain with wine and with the white of an egg, and it shall be healed. <The Herb of Ares. >

An image of Mars grass (see tab. 1, 3).

[F.107] The herb of Ares called akinakes, some call it platymandila, others call it opendasis, its flowers are purple. Take this herb on the third day [1. 107] with its prayer and place it for three nights outside under the stars. He who carries a scraping of it in a fox's skin and goes into battle defeats those who fight against him; take a piece of the root with a hare's skin and on it write the names of your enemy, and wrapping these roots in it, bind it to your right elbow and, taking up your sword, and <if> your enemies see you, they will be turned to flight and none shall stand, but shall wither. Take a little of the herb (some say 3, 5) and place it inside the sword <and> the arrow, and when you shoot you will be skilled and sure <to hit> wherever you wish.

Another. Wrapping <it in the herb of Leo and the thorny herb, carry it and you shall be honored by king and noble. But if you wish to destroy a hostile people of those rising up against you, take the herb while green and extract its juice and mix it with Roman vitriol and write on hare-skin parchment the seal of a frozen lake and the names of Ares and Saturn and the enemies and wherever [f. 108] he dis-res after his prayers, write with blood seven times the names of your enemy, hide this paper in the road through which your adversaries are about to pass and flee from there. Also keep some of the seed of the herb plucked onto the paper and marvel at its power — you can write with blood; and place it at the door of your enemy. The third day is ruled by Mars himself, in hours 1, 3, 15, 22; in the 6 hours do nothing, for they are bad, but in the other hours undertake your work as above. <Herb of the Moon.>

Image of the herb of the Moon (cf. tab. I, 7).

15 [F. 109]. The herb of the Moon is called helenion and among the Romans lunaria. It is found on the high mountain peaks of Prusa and Thrace. It too, during the waxing of the Moon, produces its leaves day by day, and during the waning loses them day by day — that is, it sheds its leaves; its flowers are yellow. 20 [f. 109] Take it also at the hour and day in which the Moon rules, with the prayer of the angel and the planet, as the interpretation appears from the beginning. He who takes its fruit and binds it in the skin of a dog and places it in his workshop creates desire among people and excellent sales. For a person afflicted by the moon from the fifteenth day of the Moon onward, which is called the waning, give three leaves of the herb each day to the moon-afflicted person, and in the end he will sit and draw it in and swallow it. Let him drink the root with white and unmixed wine from the waxing of the Moon for thirty days, the moon-afflicted person

-ment, <and heals>, and <the> sacred disease it cures when drunk for seven days.

For the spleen. The filling of the Moon heals hard spleens like a warming remedy; the root with wine drunk for four days from the first <of the Moon> heals rigors and tertian fever. For flux of the bowel and dysentery, its fruit drunk with honey for ten days during its waxing heals; again its fruit [l. 110] mixed with theriac and unmixed wine heals every affliction of the body and pains. The herb ground and eaten with honey heals gout and treats rheumatic conditions.

Another. The juice of the leaves applied to the head and the forehead heals every headache and dizziness or hemicrania and pain of the eyes and night-blindness and every other ailment.

Another. It has its lips wholly split, itself found under the Sun and Moon, and having appeared in the stars at the time of a birth, it came to pass.

Another. They shall taste of the juice of the whole herb when the leaves are stripped at the 15th, and if you wish to see an extraordinary and dreadful spectacle, coming to prophesy concerning holy questions truly, you shall marvel until before the rising of the Sun, and then the grace of the prophetic gift shall cease; and this is proven and inviolable.

Another. On the second day the Moon rules in the first hour 8, 16 and 22, and in hour 3 and 10 it is good [f.109], and it is also suitable for making a document and carrying <and> for subjugating enemies and for drawing the people to oneself and for selling and buying and for seeking offices and <for borrowing things. Furthermore, the prayer of the Moon is avín. Sequitur precatio, vide Catal. astrol., VIII, 2, p. 157.

<Herb of Venus>

The image of the grass of Venus (cf. Tab. 1, 5).

[F. 111] The herb of Venus is called satyrium and it is also called thus and agorabotanon; it has two roots: one is green and the other withered as if frozen.

You gather it at the hour <of Venus> with its prayer in order thus: it is taken for a period of the year [f. 111v] as a first desirable thing; the green one being named for the desired purpose at the hour in which <Venus> holds dominion. When the Sun and the Moon are found in their own house in Taurus, it produces great love <toward> men on account of a woman and likewise women on account of a man; the frozen one likewise you shall name, when the Sun and the Moon are in Libra, at the appropriate hour, so that either men or women may have great hatred and shall not sleep together.

Another. Again the opposite is prescribed for those who wish to have intercourse with a woman. Take from the green root 8 ounces and long pepper, 2 of pepper and 4 of white sesame, 6 thin raisins, 2 of ginger, 16 of clean water chestnut, and 4 pounds of good strained honey; grind all these carefully and boil with the honey and place below; for use, take three exagia and you will marvel, wearing this garment lightly with warm bread; for the cooled one, a preparation is made for those who wish [f. 112] to abstain entirely from intercourse: take the root of this same cooling herb, 8 oz., that is, 5 of seed and 3 of saffron; boil all these and grind them, then add 3 exagia; give it to the one who wishes to be restrained to drink on an empty stomach, and he will not think of it at all.

On the sixth day Venus holds sway and has the first

E. 1. On how to make a question.

Take a clean basin and fill it with dew of the holy Theophany, and take two baptismal candles and black incense and coriander, and when you wish to perform it you must be clean for 3 days from all impurity, and when you wish to do it at that hour you must hold the knife of the art to make the stylus of the art to write the angel of the hour and the demon of the hour, and first recite the prayer of the star of the hour, then the prayer of the angel of the hour and of the demon, and then you begin the art, and at that hour arrange to have warm scented water to wash yourself and to put on clean clothes, then place a divining table and every divining instrument and place the glass on top with the water and likewise the candles and burn incense and place the child before you and say into his right ear the following words many times: "Angels, as holy angels, by your virginity and by your holiness and by the holy light which I give you, I adjure, I solemnly adjure you on the part of the living God and on the part of your master, to tell me the whole truth concerning that which I shall ask you, to show it to me and to bring it."

Γ.3. "On the Reign of the Zodiac Signs.
Zodiac Sign Aries> ().

Under the reign of Aries: Aries at the beginning of the year is very malevolent and deceitful, such that slaves become adversaries to their masters and the lowly bring accusations against men of high standing, and they throw into confusion lands and roads and castles and mountains and hills, and good men shall perish and others shall flee from here and others from there, and from the eastern region the barbarians shall rush upon every city and land, into Babylonia and Androparkane, Persia and Palestine, Aplostane and Khorasan as far as the city of Mendrou (Mandropolis?), into Chemmin and Armenia, and deep within into Armenakin, where things shall be very good; and if anyone flees and goes up to the mountains, it shall be well; but if into the plains and the surrounding enclosure of all the Coastal Region, it shall be very difficult, and the rain shall be scarce, and from the month of March until May the sky shall give rain, so that a great report shall go forth into the world; and the winter shall be cold and the north wind shall blow constantly, and toward mid-winter there shall come a mildness and there shall be in the world great abundance of wheat, barley, honey, and butter.and the rivers shall freeze and by the north wind great trees shall be broken, and many armies shall be utterly destroyed and shall be brought to submission under a great leader like a sultan.

Know that when Aries reigns, the Moon is darkened and the 25 barbarians flee to the heights, many sheep and lambs, fruit of all [3] trees, good pastures for the livestock, noise among the wild beasts, from the month of February those who are bound

Sign of Cancer.

While Cancer reigns. Cancer is malevolent, and 5 from a part of Egypt [1. 5] there shall be a great uprising and turmoil and resistance of slaves against kings, sicknesses and pestilence among men and their servitudes shall not benefit them, and the winter shall be drug-like: first sweet and later bitter and much snow, bile among men, 10 hardship, and scarcity throughout all the dry land; in Africa and Omara and Pachle great abundance, but the rulers and kings shall render judgments and bloodshed and a great head shall be lost, and in this time many signs shall appear in the sky through clouds and stars [the Sun 15 and the Moon] and it signifies that the barbarians shall move against the privateers and the Turks shall wage war against the Karamanids; the early sowing shall be fine, the late shall not profit, among horses and camels there shall be plague, unless the water animals multiply, fruits scarce, summer dry, much blood, and the 20 villages shall be harmed, but abundance only on the seashores.

Sign of Leo.

While Leo reigns: Leo is valiant, for from the Iron Gate he shall brandish a sword over the whole world and there shall be the wrath of God, mutual slaughter and fear and trembling and 25 the world shall be filled with armies and there shall be great tumult, for kings [f. 5'] and rulers and commanders shall suffer greatly, lands, fortresses, mountains shall be filled with armies, become an heir and exercise power, and the armed bands will plot to harm the king, and the king will learn of it and cut them down, and they will be greatly afraid of the king; afterward, however, they will make peace and concord. In Romania there will be much rain, in Egypt little; in summer, heat and little water; the winter gloomy and cold, and spring with winds; locusts will appear and cause damage in the lowland regions; in Rome much rain, in Mistrin little water, in Papylē, and in India there will be an earthquake, and in the regions of Syria two winds will arise — one hot and the other cold — so that houses will be destroyed and trees uprooted and ships endangered; and the winds will harm people and strip the seed-bearing trees, and pregnant animals will perish; people's affairs will be favorable, betrothals, plantings, buildings — and the flocks will have many lambs.

Sign of Virgo.

When Virgo reigns, there will be joy and peace in the world, and there will be in every respect a good abundance of wheat and barley, of garden produce, of beehives, of legumes, of small and large animals; commerce will be good, all properties good, the winter mild and the winds favorable [5.6]; but upon Cilicia harsh winds and earthquake and lightning and thunder; in summer, heat; the autumn good; in Rome very good, and a great head will be lost; and in the foothills the thieves and pirates will raid the fields of Papylion, and the trees will yield no profit; in Chiamēn and in Armenia bread will be costly; and in the third part of the world or toward the northern region there will be turmoil as far as Bulgaria; but the boasters and the Turkomans will commit arrogance against the sultanic authorities, and those who fight with their hands and those who hold Perimēn will fall from their positions of power and be reduced to poverty; let the early sowing be abundant and fine; health

Sign of Libra.

During the reign of Libra: Libra raises one kingdom on high and brings another low, and behold a king or great ruler shall come forth to seize the world and to establish justice over cowardices, but the amirs of the Roman and the Arabs and the Saracens shall take courage and shall put to flight the armies of the Roman; all the fruits of the earth become good, the sowings good, but the ships and the sea shall freeze, and in Armenia a star shall hang and a great head shall be lost, a cold winter, but beneficial, and a spring with winds, in summer heat, death of old men, men and women; at the beginning of winter the wells begin to run, in autumn fear and trembling, and from the Iron Gate it comes to Constantinople, Sweden and Scandinavia scarcity, in Cappadocia pestilence, a multitude of cattle, from the month of August there shall be a great heat and let the people take heed, lest they be harmed.

Sign of Scorpio.

When Scorpio reigns, it indicates minor disturbances in the world, and slaves will rebel against their masters and their 25 lords will turn against them and destroy them, and great anger and affliction will come upon people, a mild and cold winter, and in the southern regions the fields and the trees and every kind of thing will be harmed, in Rome the fruit of the trees and the earth will bear fruit, in Syria there will be turmoil and likewise in of February until the calends and after the calends much rain, and from March until April a great wind will blow, much fruit on the trees, the Swordsman will appear in the sky and the king of the Persians will perish, and much captivity in the west and wickedness at sea, the winter will be cold, and it will snow much and rain much and illegitimate children will be born and the nature of the waters will freeze and in the spring there will be an earthquake, but in Hindustan and Mistras the sowing will be unprofitable, and it foretells the captivity of women and children, and fear will fall upon the notaries and the mustrophidas, and upon part of the east a foreign people will come and will commit disorders and great acts of swearing and the armed bands will commit acts of arrogance and there will be famine, in every city and land sickness and much disease without death and in the lands of the Ishmaelites signs will appear in the sky through stars, signifying that in such a year no work of joy will begin, for it will truly be unfortunate, and God has seen the hidden things.

Zodiac Sign Aquarius,

When Aquarius reigns during the same period, it indicates that the spring shall come with winds, and upon the earth there shall be peace and blessing, the whole season shall be mild, fair and rainy, and the fruit of the earth plentiful; yet the trees shall be harmed by frost; among the kings there shall be love; know also that the Moon will darken, and there arises in Saracenia turmoil and uproar, and it portends much captivity, and toward summer the raiders will turn to plunder and will commit great acts of arrogance, but they shall be greatly defeated; in Saracenia there shall be much rain; in the lowland regions there will be no rain, but in the high places it shall be plentiful, and two winds shall blow, the one hot and the other cold; great danger in Mistrin and in the Coastal Regions. The sowings shall be good, and from Galatia and Melitene and Egypt as far as Constantinople mighty armies shall assemble, and throughout the whole earth there shall be famine, and upon a part of the south captivity shall come to pass, and mutual slaughter and pestilence upon the land, and a din in the livestock and the armed bands of the south shall go toward the east, and God will give strength to the easterners and they shall defeat the southerners, locusts shall also appear, from the heat the people shall fall ill and suffer headaches in many places.

Sign of Pisces.

When Pisces reigns, it signifies the exaltation of great men, but also the death of abundant fruits and of young girls, the loss of goats and sheep, the whole year shall be rainy, much frost and snow, the waters of seas and lakes shall rise, the winter shall be moderate in Mistras, a star shall plunge into the sea, and it signifies that in Chiamen there shall be much captivity and a warm wind shall blow and the people shall fall ill from the winds and it shall blow in Papyle; but in general there shall be great abundance and much joy in Romania, loss of four-footed animals and in one part of the south in one land there shall be unrest, fear and arrogance, and a man shall come forth into the world and shall say that I am a ruler and shall be exceedingly fearsome, yet shall not harm another, but mutual slaughter among the kings of the east and among the armed bands, strong disturbance and great fear and deliberation among the kings to flee in various places, and a slight famine in Constantinople, in summer such heat that the leaves of the trees shall wither and the trees shall be spared, but many apples.

The astragalomantic oracle

A Byzantine testimony concerning astragalomantic oracles exists in this little work, where a table of dice is substituted in place of the dice themselves. On ancient astragalomancy see G. Kaibel, Ein Würfelorakel (Hermes, X, 1876), p. 192 ff. and Inschriften aus Pisidien (Hermes XXIII, 1888), p. 533 ff.; Fr. F.13. This tablet is for the dice, which the great astronomer and wise Leo and Ptolemy the geometer made concerning every matter that a person wishes to know, whether concerning life, or concerning death, or concerning marriage, or concerning separations, or concerning love, or concerning mediation, or concerning the sea, or concerning childbearing, or concerning illness, or concerning change of house, or concerning apparitions of demons.

Take two dice [on day] 4, 5, or 6, and see that the sky is clear and the day is bright, and say the Trisagion together with the Our Father, and say: in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit.

[1. 14] . For the 1st and 1st, it fell to you, O man, under Saturn and Venus: it signifies murder and an evil death. Whether you ask about illness, the sick person will die; whether about war, he is defeated and slain; whether about marriage, it signifies separation; whether about a lost matter, it will not be found — and to speak plainly, it signifies evil.

: For the 1st and 2nd, it fell to you, O man, under Saturn and Taurus: it signifies from bad to worse; with patience, every matter you wish to establish on the earth — whether a house, a mill, or another agricultural matter of the land, vineyard, and garden — will come to pass.

:· For the 1st and 3rd, it fell to you, O man, under Taurus and Gemini: your question signifies bitterness and danger, and in a short time you will be a governor, and you are destined to have two children with your wife; she will die and you will take another, and your first children will also die.

·:: For the 1st and 4th, it fell to you, O man, under Saturn and Cancer: your path and your service are evil and contrary; it signifies danger and a storm at sea, drowning, and great loss from pirates.

30 ·:: For the 1st and 5th, it fell to you, O man, under Saturn and Leo: your enemy is exalted above you, and you shall fall and you shall be trampled underfoot by many, and thus you shall seize your office and your authority.

[1. 145] ; · In the 2nd and 1st it fell to you, O man, under Jupiter and Aries; your question indicates a great office and great honor from the ecclesiastical side, whether bishop or abbot or pope or another position of whatever kind you wish to hold.

: : In the 2nd and 2nd it fell to you, O man, under Jupiter and Taurus; your question indicates, O man, dignity and ecclesiastical service; you wish to hold lordship over estates or over villages of the church.

: : In the 2nd and 3rd it fell to you, O man, under Jupiter and Gemini; it indicates marriage and a wedding crown and love and the blessing of the household, and you shall acquire great wealth and shall be established in great honor.

15 : :: In the 2nd and 4th it fell to you, O man, under Jupiter and Cancer; it indicates great sorrow and the separation of husband and wife, and signs of service away from joy, and your question indicates everything contrary.

: ::: In the 2nd and 5th it fell to you, O man, under Jupiter and Leo; your question is entirely good and proven and all-encompassing, and whatever you wish to have, seek it — whether an estate or anything at all — your question indicates entirely good things.

∴ In the 3rd and 1st it fell to you, O man, under Mars and Aries; your question is entirely evil and fraught with danger; and blood shall flow [1. 15] before you on account of a harlot woman, and slander and envy, and your question indicates the gallows.

∴ : In the 3rd and 2nd it fell to you, O man, in Ares and Taurus from bad to good is your question, you have one person remote in foreign lands and you wish to come suddenly and 30 you wish to escape from every trial and prison and from ano

5 Περὶ λαχμηντηρίου

Astrologicis interrogationibus oraculum mathematicum velut a sanctis Apostolis constitutum praeponit scriptor; oracula vero talia modi vetustiores astrologicae praxis erant.

Hanc rationem retinet quoque incantamentum christianum lachmenterion. Attamen cum figura circuli, quae ad oraculum consulendum servibat, in codice deperdita sit, haud facile de natura huius divinationis iudicari potest. Nescio an λαχμεντήριον λαχνιτήριον idem verbum sit atque λαξευτήριον, quod in libris geomantiae usurpatur; cf. Cat. IV, p. 74 (cod. 29, f. 1); VIII, 1 p. 70 (cod. 9, f. 163ᵛ).

On the lottery oracle

The author places before it a mathematical oracle for astrological questions, as if established by the holy Apostles; indeed such oracles were older modes of astrological practice.

This method is also retained by the Christian incantation of the lachmenteriou. However, since the circular figure that served for consulting the oracle has been lost in the codex, it is not easy to judge the nature of this divination. I do not know whether λαχμεντήριον or λαχνιτήριον is the same word as λαξευτήριον, which is used in the books of geomancy; cf. Cat. IV, p. 74 (cod. 29, f. 1); VIII, 1 p. 70 (cod. 9, f. 163°).

[F. 177] With the help of God, let us begin to write down the subject of the lottery, set forth by the holy apostles and given to the faithful, so that they have no need of astronomy or lofty speculation. If you wish to act with truth, so that we may faithfully know about some matter, place your finger upon the 42 names set forth and inscribed in the circle with care, and before learning the number found seek it in the insertions of the entire lottery, so that from this you may know and hold the south, and read the type placed according to the north, the knowledge of darkness; here is the benefit and advantage of these things, that it be done with a pure mind and good reasoning.

Apocalypse of Daniel

A new translation of the Apocalypsis prophetae Danielis was found in cod. N. 575 of the Bibl. Publ. Here only certain excerpts are published, so as to complete the history of the ἀποκάλυψις more frequently illustrated by the editors of the Catalogue (VII, p. 171; VIII, 3, p. 171; X, p. 153). In the preface that new translator says of himself: [F. 46].

Kalos Alexios translated this book into Greek letters, that is to say Roman. For there is nothing spurious in this book that needs to be corrected, and I labored greatly to learn the letters of 15 the Arabs clearly, and let it be known to you, as has not gone unnoticed, that God the creator of all things, who fashioned the visible and the invisible, for this reason fashioned man by divine breath to search out
His own powers and judgments, as David the melodist says:
"Thy knowledge is become wonderful to me..."

If in the present month the Moon is darkened and held back, take as the rule of proof that in the region of the west there shall be fear and distress and much death, and in [Γ.48] the regions of Babylon there shall be much rain and light snow, so as to damage even the sowing; the cold shall reach even the kingdom of Babylon itself, on account of which many deliberations and thoughts shall come upon them because of the many enemies that shall rise up against them, and death of people and the perishing of reptiles and fish shall occur, and likewise pains of the eyes and wounds upon the flesh of men shall come to pass, and between those in the east and the west enmity and strife shall arise, and a great man shall commit rebellion and shall seek the kingdom of the west.

If in the present month a lunar eclipse occurs, it indicates that in the regions of the west fear and distress shall come and much death; and in the region of Babylon there shall be snowy rain and the sowing shall be damaged by cold and the king of Babylon shall be troubled and disturbed on account of the uprising of enemies and death of men and of reptiles and fish and pain of eyes and ruptures and plagues among men and between the western and eastern rulers distortions and enmities shall arise, and one of the rulers shall rise up against the kingdom of the west and shall seize the kingdom for himself.

Another who strangles children: Abizouth, Gelaouth — the angel Aphara[1] that is, Raphael, destroys them.

Prognostics concerning the twelve places.

What is set forth here concerning the twelve places differs entirely from the doctrine of the astrologers, which is called δωδεκάτροπος. (cf. Hermes Trimegistus, Cat., VIII, 4, p. 131 ff.; Vettius Valens p. 62 ff.; 179 f. Kroll, etc.) For what is treated here is not the places of the celestial sphere, but the places of the earth where it is expedient or not expedient to dwell, to build a house, to keep flocks, etc. These places were indicated by twelve letters drawn in a square, one of which was in some manner designated by the person who consulted this popular oracle.

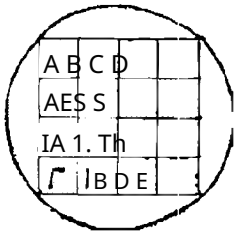
On the Interpretation of Good and Bad Zodiac Signs



[F.116]A. This place is very beautiful and cunning, and it also has a guardian on the right side, and he is good and virtuous, he protects the place and no one else enters it, especially in commerce he is fortunate, and the evil eye and wicked eyes do not enter his house, and in all things it is beneficial.

B. This place is good and also has a guardian on the left, and this one is good in all things, except regarding your animals he is not granted favor over them, so that they may not multiply; what you build, here do not build and elsewhere build the stable, because for your animals it is not good, and depart from it.

C. This place has a guardian from the north and he is jealous and ill-tempered, and because of the jealousy he has toward people he does not give rest in it; and yet there is some fair good of the [f. 117] place, especially also concerning the water, and in every way he will be fond of it, and if you wish to dwell here, take trigeminal, that is aloe wood, saffron and incense and fumigate in the mornings on the 2nd, 4th and 6th, and you will have great joy; and fumigate these every two months for as long as you stay in the place; but if you do not do these things, stay far away from it.

D. This place has a great lord and is ruled by him; it also has both good and bad ones in his service and a great coming and going, and it allowed no rest.

If you are able to dwell there, do not blaspheme and do not have any insolence, only prayer and fasting and incense.

E. This place, its zodiac sign is the Serpent and its guardians are from among the rulers; ask and do not be afraid, and you shall rejoice, because it is suitable, and through this Serpent guard against wickedness from evil neighbors.

5. These are the guardians of the work and do not attempt anything here at all, because the place is treacherous and harmful to people — do not receive a woman there, nor any animal, and guard against all danger throughout; and it is dangerous, let one stay far from it, and if you do not wish to depart from it, you will receive many evils and poverty, [1.117v] and whatever you rule, it will not come in, and as much as you can, flee, so that you may not suffer loss and gain no benefit.

15 Z. This place has a great lord, and with prayer and liturgy do as much as you can and proceed; it does not tolerate blasphemy and insolence, because this one is from an evil place, but from a place of trade; therefore guard the decorum and the goodwill of the place and not the insolence, and take heed as much as you can, then build, because this place is good.

I. This place is good and suitable and beneficial and in every respect the place is distinguished; therefore if you wish to build and to rest, it is also helpful to people and to animals and to livestock and it is good for wealth and the evil eyes it did not allow to enter there, nor can an evil demon enter it, but it is entirely pure.

Θ. This place is curious and useless to people; do not approach it at all, for it is well-guarded, and as much as you can, leave it alone, lest harm befall you, but do

Otto Kern also included it among the Orphic Fragments (p. 293), who discussed the lost poem περὶ καταρχών, from which these excerpts were drawn. The Rossicus codex is much more complete than this edition.

One must begin a journey during the tropics, for one returns quickly. During the tropics, declare friendship. During the tropics, if someone makes a promise, it is not fulfilled, or the one who gave the promise takes it back. During the tropics, words spoken and dreams that appear are false. During the tropics, neither should an orator engage in a contest, nor should sailors set sail, nor should exiles be made, because these things are incomplete. But if during the tropics someone is banished from their homeland by a sentence, they return again. Do not begin a firm undertaking during the tropics.

[F. 7] 25. Does astronomy speak the truth?

In matters concerning us, not at all; for this is contrary to the providence of God and to our free will. These things are not, therefore, causes of anything that comes into being or of anything that perishes, but rather they are signs of destruction, of rains and of changes in the air, and wars are often foretold by them; and often comets are signs of the deaths of kings by God's command, and again they dissolve; for they are not among the stars that were created from the beginning, but appearing only then and at that moment alone, they are no longer made manifest thereafter.

EXCERPTS FROM CODE 19

(Proper code the author).

Excerpta ex codice 19 opiniones populares de magia et astrologia praebent (astrologlac obiurgatores quosdam invenies supra: Mich. Pselli de astrologia, cod. 7, 1. 7, p. 167 ; Περὶ ἰατρομαθηματικών συντάξεων, cod. 8, 1. 181, p. 168 ; De sortibus, cod. 4, f. 17v, p. 151). Excerpts from codex 19 present popular beliefs about magic and astrology (you will find certain critics of astrology above: Michael Psellus on astrology, cod. 7, l. 7, p. 167; On iatromathematical treatises, cod. 8, l. 181, p. 168; On lots, cod. 4, f. 17v, p. 151). First, in the apocalypse of the Mother of God we read about the torments of magicians; the received history of Solomon demonstrates methods against demons; and finally the dialogue of Antony and the demon frequently affirms a magical formula (p. 172, 9): στῶμεν καλῶς, στώμεν μετά φόβου Θεοῦ, which is derived from Christian myths, and foretells the demonic handmaidens of the seventh and eighth ages (on astrological ages see Catal. VIII, 3 p. 199; IV, p. 113). This passage of the codex is noteworthy (p. 172, 19–20): αἱ κακόγριες ... μετροῦν καὶ ξαναμετροῦν τοὺς μαντευομένους, that is: demonic old women in divinations measure and re-measure men according to the stars.

From the Apocalypse of the Mother of God,

F. 3. ... and the (commander-in-chief) answered: These are those who forsake God and engage in demonic matters, that is, they go to the sorcerers and are enchanted and hope, the foolish ones, to receive a boon from the demons; others go also to the diviners and cast lots for their fate, as to what they may suffer, they believe in birds and in roosters when they crow at night, and with this the devil deceives them and they see how they are healed from illnesses and the wretched ones do not consider that the devil deceives them in order to bring them to eternal damnation.

of our word, the other nine orders received one from another in succession; yet our first one, Lucifer, was not content with this, but here [f. 527] attempted in the fantasy of his mind to set his throne higher than God, and when this thought spread throughout our entire order, then a tumult arose in our midst and we began to fall like the leaves of trees through the air with violent force. Then the archangel Michael hastened forward and stood in the midst with a great voice and said: "Let us stand well, let us stand in the fear of God," and so each of us remained where he was found, and Lucifer, being the highest, reached the lowest parts of the earth, others remained in the sea, others on the earth, others in the air and others in the ether [f. 53] of heaven, condemned, as you see us, from angels we became demons.

Zodiologium.

In canone astrologicae praxis ut praecipuam partem huius canonis «zodiologia» semper invenimus (vide supra cod. 3 ff. 61 sqq., p. 123 sqq.). Tractatus codicis Mosquensis saec. XI exeuntis praesertim textui codicis Atheniensis 26 saec. XVII (Cat. X, p. 229 sqq.) affinis est; ambo zodiologia sine dubio ex eodem archetypo derivata sunt, sed textus recentissimi codicis Atheniensis valde deformatus et depravatus est: erroribus lacunisque librarii ignari scatet, quid vero subi Tauro genitis σκορπίου ἀποβράχια aut sub Scorpione κέρας καὶ αὐρὰ ταύρου etc. prodest? multis pretiosissimis vetustatis vestigiis caret: de herbis magicis, imprimis ἀπόσιστρον, nihil legimus; congruentias astrologicas (ὁ γὰρ γεννηθεὶς ἐν τῷ Ταύρῳ τληπαθὴς ἔσαι, ἐπειδὴ ὑπόζυγος ὡς ὁ ταῦρος ἕλκεται etc. cod. Mosqu.), proverbia popularia (ἔχων δύο ἀετοὺς ἐν τῇ κεφαλῇ etc. cod. Mosqu.) non reperimus, rhythmum ipsum divinationis astrologicae non sentimus; ideo textum cod. EXCERPTS FROM CODE 20

(Musaei Histor. Mosqu. 186)

Zodiologium.

In the canon of astrological practice, as a principal part of this canon, we always find the "zodiologia" (see above cod. 3 ff. 61 sqq., p. 123 sqq.). The treatise of the Moscow codex, from the late eleventh century, is especially related to the text of the Athenian codex 26 from the seventeenth century (Cat. X, p. 229 sqq.); both zodiologia are without doubt derived from the same archetype, but the text of the more recent Athenian codex is greatly deformed and corrupted, teeming with errors and lacunae of an ignorant scribe —:what indeed does σκορπίου ἀποβράχια for those born under Taurus, or κέρας καὶ αὐρά ταύρου etc. for those born under Scorpio, signify? It lacks many most precious traces of antiquity: we read nothing about magical herbs, especially ἀπόσιστρον; we do not find astrological correspondences (ὁ γὰρ γεννηθεὶς ἐν τῷ Ταύρῳ τληπαθὴς ἔσαι, ἐπειδὴ ὑπόζυγος ὡς ὁ ταῦρος ἕλκεται etc. cod. Mosqu.), popular proverbs (ἔχων δύο ἀετοὺς ἐν τῇ κεφαλῇ etc. cod. Mosqu.); we do not feel the very rhythm of astrological divination; therefore we publish the text of the Moscow codex in full, since it is necessary for correcting and supplementing cod. Atheniensis 26.

Regarding the other manuscripts that offer a "zodiologia," cf. Delatte, Cat. X, p. 101 sq. and especially Zuretti, Cat. XI, 2, p. 115 ff., where a treatise is partly edited that often agrees with the Moscow manuscript.

Zodiac sign 1: Aries has 13 letters.

One born at the time of the zodiac sign of Aries will be well-formed, handsome, pleasant to look upon, with a receding hairline, fine-faced, cheerful in appearance, of middling stature, shapely, fair-complexioned, with joined eyebrows, stern in countenance but gentle in disposition, truthful, self-sufficient, governing his life in soul and mind as the ram governs the flock. He will be beneficial to many, and will attain wealth, glory, and honor; for one born under Aries will have curly hair, cheerful

The girl born in the season of the zodiac sign of Taurus will be beautiful, fair-faced, with fine eyes; she will have a birthmark that does not harm her body. She will have a critical period at three months and will grieve her family; for a year and six months she will be ill, and while sleeping she will cry out, being harmed in her teeth by the shining Moon; therefore let her wear evergreen horse-parsley, sulphurwort, peony, amolia, aposistron, and let her have no fear. She will be god-fearing, pure toward her parents, and her husband will prosper on her account; she will have pleasing children, they will grow wealthy and have a good reputation; it is beneficial for them to be nursed outside and not to take the mother's milk [l. 1467], so as not to harm the parents. Let her guard herself from fire and hot water. She will be striking in appearance, sociable, rough, bold, thrifty, compassionate, generous; she will have critical periods at the 5th, 7th, 18th, 25th, 38th, 45th, and 55th years; having passed through these critical periods she will live 65 years. When she is ill, let her take scrapings from a bull's horn and hairs from its forehead and tail, burn these and mix them with sulfur and frankincense in cedar oil, let her anoint herself and she will not be in danger. She will fall from her estate and rise again; she will die of an ailment of her belly from violent causes.

Zodiac sign 3, Gemini.

One born under the sign of Gemini will be sickly until the age of 9. If he survives to 12 years, he will be long-lived. He will be a handsome man, fair-looking, honey-complexioned, curly-haired, with a round head, pleasant to behold, round-faced, small in stature, small-eyed, gracious, virtuous in all things, playful, beloved by many women, having a fine destiny and good hands. Whoever meets him on the road will fare well; he will honor his own family and friends, will escape his ancestral home, and will lead a life without recorded history. He will be fond of letters, will gain mastery over great affairs, will frequent the royal court and be entrusted with considerable matters. He will toil greatly for the poor and will subdue his enemies through his love. He will be sharp and quick-tempered, walking by his own counsel, doing things by his own stubbornness, not tolerating being commanded by she will suffer considerable hardships in her youth, but will also experience much joy, and her life will not come to an end; she will be contemptuous of death and will meet her end by the sword at the age of 107.

The woman born under the sign of Gemini will be fair of face, hawk-eyed, skilled in the arts, prudent, quick to learn in all things, fond of letters; at the age of 4 she will fall ill. If she passes the ages of 7 and 12, she will be long-lived, will conduct her life for the better, self-sufficient, neither lacking nor in excess; she will be ruddy, urban, secretly amorous, argumentative, fond of her husband. If she bears children, only one will be left to her; she will be desirous of others' possessions, will have experience of poisons, will hold sway over her own household, strangers, and servants; she will bury her husband and live with another, and will grieve over him with jealousy, will consume her livelihood, but in the end will render vows to the Lord God. Let her not go out at a late hour, lest she be jostled by some encounter. She will be quick-tempered, not one to be dismissed. She will have a mark on her neck or chin, or on her shoulder blade, or on her side, or on her knee, or on her lower abdomen; she will have critical years at ages 3, 5, 9, 18, 27, 33, 35, 4. Having passed through these critical years she will live to the age of 180. Let her not look in a mirror, let her not work on Friday, let her not loosen her braid on Sunday, let her not eat crab or eggplant, nor goat, nor partridge.She will grieve greatly and after these things will be widowed; she will suffer terribly in her breasts and will be in danger while giving birth. Let her not gossip in church; she will go to a foreign land and will not die in her paternal home; she will meet her end by death from her side at the age of 180.

Of the 4th Sign of Cancer

He who is born at the time of the sign of Cancer was born on a fortunate day, beloved by his own people; he will be flourishing, noble, hardworking, a wrestler, fond of hunting, secretive, heavy-handed, gathering all his livelihood by striking, and he will be without want; he will be bitten by a dog, he will be in danger in a river, he will not taste death at sea, he will be shipwrecked and

Sign 5 Of Leo.

He who is born under the sign of Leo shall be handsome, fair, bald at the crown, having two cowlicks on his head; at the age of 18 he shall grieve his parents. He shall be a man who is not given to compliance, diligent, having his own stubbornness, not obeying even 15 his own parents. He shall be a sorrowful man, his gait harmful, mature in his manner of dress; but if he also learns letters, he shall come to advancement, shall tread upon the imperial court, shall be a friend to great men, shall be afflicted on account of his own brothers, giving of his own and not receiving in return with good grace, shall be afflicted on behalf of his parents, and shall find fortune neither in play nor in laughter. He shall be sharp and hot-tempered, quick to 20 reconcile himself... on account of lordly authority he shall be much afflicted; he shall pass through illnesses from inflammation and plague, shall be harmed by a beast of burden [f. 149a] and by the sword, shall fall from a height, shall suffer from ailments of the bowels. He shall be a vigorous man, heavy of spirit, free of tongue, 25 trustworthy in his boldness; he shall take a wife and bury her, and shall come to a second, and with his wife he shall be unsettled, and he shall have a critical year at age 3, at age 7, and at age 23. If he passes through these, he shall live 89 years. He shall bear a mark on his face, on his private parts, and on his chest, and he shall die from the side.

If he completes the 7th or the 12th year, he will become long-lived. He will be noble, prudent, fond of hunting, stern in countenance but gentle in disposition, never laughing, his gait harmful, taking great strides, perfect in stature, well-mannered; he will tread the court of a king, known by many; if he takes a wife, he will lose her or bury her; if he has a child from his own loins, he will suffer in the liver, belly, and feet; being loyal to his friends, he will suffer loss from a guarantee and will wish to relocate from his place, but again he will benefit his own household. He will be obsessed with women, amorous, quick-moving; for the sake of friends he will risk his own head and will be met with ingratitude; having a fortunate and healthy disposition, being negligent. Let him guard against tree, hunting, sword, and battle; let him not eat deer meat; he will have a critical period in the 3rd, 5th, 7th, 9th, 17th, 27th, 33rd, 45th, and 55th years; having passed through these critical periods he will live 71 years. He will have a mark on the loins, or hand, or face, or chest. When he is ill, let him take the claws of a lion, or barley leaven, sulfur, and frankincense, and mixing them with oil let him anoint himself and he will not be in danger.

She who is born in the time of the zodiac sign of Leo will be free, 20 with fine hair, much-laboring, exposed to many dangers, well-ordered; she will neither play nor laugh from the soul, but will straightway be reproached, will grieve over a husband, and will be accused on account of her own unlawful acts; her children will not be from one man alone. Let her wear an amulet bearing the name of God, and no evil will befall her nor her husband.
25 If she reaches 40 years of age, she will fare better; submissive, she will acquire a livelihood from her own labors, and as she advances in age she will be sorrowful.
Let her have critical years at the 2nd year, 5th, 6th, 9th, 17th, 27th, 35th, 45th, 53rd, 66th.
Having passed through these critical years she will live 84 years. Let her have a mark

Of the 7th Zodiac Sign, Libra.

One born in the time of the sign of Libra was born on a fortunate day; he will be one-eyed, bald, broad-browed, fair-skinned, somewhat pale, with bloodshot eyes, handsome of face, blond-haired, dark at the crown, thick-haired, of medium stature, woman-mad, affectionate, beloved by women; at the age of 8 years he will fall ill, and at the age of 20 he will come into danger until the age of 30; being much toiled in his youth, yet his livelihood will not fail; he will inherit a mother's blessing and will be known to many; for friends and his own people he will lay down his soul and will receive no thanks; if he enters into a dispute, he will suffer loss. He will be merciful, god-fearing and benevolent, of many opinions and versatile; many will envy him, but he will subdue them; the woman he wishes to love he will not obtain, but he will live with another and will bury her; because of a child he will grieve. He will be fond of wine, lavish, spending beyond his means, and from a monastery he will hear blame. 1514], he will be loved by a married woman, he will fall ill but will not be in danger, he will fall ill from plague and eruption, he will suffer in his feet and kidneys, he will experience fear from water, he will fall from a height and will endure a hidden pain; he will have critical years at ages 3, 13, 18, and 22. He will have a mark on his shoulder, on his chest, and on the hidden part; he will live 73 years, and he will die from an intestinal ailment.

One born in the season of the zodiac sign of Libra, after a year and 6 months, will fall ill; but if he passes through this critical period, he will be long-lived and will benefit his household — prudent, prosperous, successful; he will have wealth; he will take a wife through lawful means and at first will lose her; he will wander through many lands, then will settle in one place and in that same place will fall into great necessity; nothing unjust will befit him; acquisitive, fair-looking, broad-faced, his hair tinged with reddish hue, handsome in appearance, well-natured, industrious, generous to friends, economical, truthful toward his own friends, sociable. When he prays to God, let him not speak idly; he will partake in the mysteries of God, or will lead a place, or a city, or a church, having greater authority, yet his fortune uneven — for such is Libra; he will fall from a height, will contract a disease, will suffer pain in his feet and intestines; while young he will suffer pain in his navel, loins, and shoulders; he will risk his head for a friend and will be met with ingratitude. He will be faint-hearted, will hear reproach concerning a woman; fire and hot water will trouble him; he will be bitten by a dog, and will be maimed by a four-footed animal and by a sword; he will die a sudden death. He will have a mark [f.152] on the hips or the genitals, or the belly, or the face. He will have critical periods at years 3, 5, 7, 17, 21, 35, 42, 63. Having passed through these critical periods he will live ... years. When he is ill, let him take scrapings of scales and a balance-beam, and male frankincense with peony and sulphur, mixing them with oil and anointing himself, and he will not be in danger.

She who is born under the sign of Libra will be beautiful, well-favored, fair-lipped, will fall ill before the age of 3, fair-faced, rosy, one-eyed, with joined eyebrows, and will face danger in her 6th year. Let her be guarded against plots, disturbances, fire and boiling water and against being attacked by four-footed animals; she will be bitten without cause, she will be in danger during childbirth, a spirit will trouble her, she will fall ill at age 3 and her illnesses will cease, she will prosper through her own labors, she will find favor with greater persons, she will give thanks to men and to God, she will be grieved on account of a husband. She will be god-fearing and her life uneven and her scales unequal, but she will be prolific, in great glory in old age, skilled in household management, she will hear slander, and she will die a dignified death; her critical years will be at 2, 5, 6, 9, 17, 35, 45, 53. Having passed through these critical years she will live 72 years. When she is ill, let her take scrapings from a balance and a counterweight together with male frankincense and peony and sulfur and frankincense, mixed with cedar oil let her be anointed and she will not be in danger. She will bear a mark on her face or <on the hidden parts of the body.

Of the Sign or of Scorpio.

The one born during the time of the sign of Scorpio will fall ill at age 3; at age 18 he will be troubled in his paternal estate, whether through lordship, or through weakness of mind or finances, or some necessity. He will be one who yields to 5 no one [1.152], being cautious. At age 23 he will fall into great danger, being simple of soul, speaking well; but if he reaches age 25, he will acquire great wealth, will defend himself against his enemies, will overcome his adversaries, and will be honored by great men. He will be quick-tempered, have many children, and will die a natural death. 10 Let him not eat mullet or leeks; fire and hot water will trouble him; he will be chosen by a better man. He will be sharp, free, mingling with the many, hard to deal with. Let him guard against being bitten by a scorpion; but if he is bitten, let him roast a scorpion and apply it to the bite and he will not be harmed, especially in the years of 15 youth. At age 18 he will suffer misfortune and will be grieved on account of his children; he will have critical years at ages 3, 5, 7, 17, 21, 35, 53, 66. Having passed through these critical years, he will live to age 79. He will have a mark on his shoulders, neck, or belly. When he falls ill, let him take a scor- pion, olive berries and laurel leaves, sulfur and frankincense, and having 20 mixed them, let him anoint himself.He will tread upon a royal court and will become known to many; he will suffer in the belly and shoulders.

The woman born in the time of the sign of Scorpio will be one-eyed, rough, will be ill for a year and 6 months, bold, economical, speaking well, irascible, self-willed, will dwell with a 25 noble man, will have male and female children, and at the age of 27 years having become a wo man, she will fall into a feminine disease; if she obtains an amulet, she will become healthy; fire and hot water will trouble her, she will have a livelihood with sweat and toil, and she is more modest [l. 153] as she advances in age; in the years of her youth she will have increase of livelihood. She will be generous and 30 will have authority over her household and will take pleasure in paternal things; she will die before the brothers born after her; she will have a critical period at 3 years, 5', 5, 6, 17, 21, 25, 35, 55, 66. Having passed through these critical periods she will live 79 years. She will have a mark on the shoulders or in the hidden parts of the body. She will be much labored, she will suffer in the Sign of the Archer (Sagittarius).

5 He who is born in the season of the sign of Sagittarius will be handsome and fair-eyed. He will cause harm to his own people in their property on account of some necessary matter, whether through illness, or lordship, or a woman; he will especially grieve and wrong his mother greatly; for it was necessary for him to be raised outside for a certain number of days, and he did not touch his mother's milk, and thus he would not have grieved her. But after these things he will benefit his parents and his own people. He will be sharp, irascible, easily changeable, prudent, fond of drink, showing respect to no one, quick to learn, keen in all things, skilled in self-defense, and he will hear reproach concerning a married woman; incantations and drugs will have no power over him; he will become master of considerable wealth and will suffer great losses. Let him guard himself against fighting and quarreling, lest he fall into danger from a greater man; he will defend himself against his enemies, will overcome his adversaries, and will be honored by great persons. Most of those born under Sagittarius fall into a violent death; and he may fall from a height, suffer in the belly and the foot, which is variable, and he will be grieved on account of a woman.He will be wise, beloved by those who behold him; his fortune will be uneven, and he will acquire a livelihood through his own foresight; he will rule over his brothers and cause division among them, but he himself will have good fortune; he will travel through much land; he will have critical periods at the 3rd, 6th, 9th, 17th, 27th, 35th, 40th, and 53rd years. Having passed through these critical periods, he will live 110 years; he will suffer in the thighs and feet. He will have a mark on his shoulders or thighs. When he falls ill, let him take scrapings from the little bow together with cedar oil, sulfur, and frankincense, and anoint himself, and he will not be in danger.

She who is born in the time of the zodiac sign of Sagittarius will be susceptible to illness,
30 her departures will be... for one year and 6 months she will be sick, in a small way she will grieve her parents, especially she will grieve her mother; for it was necessary for her to be raised outside, so that she might not take her mother's milk and [grieve] her mother

Sign 10 of Capricorn.

15One born in the time of the sign of Capricorn will be ill in his third year and will disturb his father's household. He will be under the yoke of devout men, will spend some time among them and will be left behind by men who are far away. The first woman he is betrothed to, he will not take her, but will live with another; and the majority of those born under Capricorn fall into disease and bitter illness, and will be sick for a year and six months, so that as he walks he will be startled, turning around and looking behind him and seeing no one; he will suffer dizziness and numbness of the hands; let him wear an amulet with God's name, and with it evergreen wild celery, crowfoot, peony, amolia, aposistron, and let him fear nothing. Let him guard against running, wrestling, climbing to heights, and let him not rashly approach a river or untimely water. He will be prudent, prosperous, and talkative. When he has nothing, he will find; and when he has, he will lose; let him refrain from standing as surety, otherwise he will incur loss; let him be passionate, self-reliant, 30 changeable, fickle, faint-hearted, fond of the arts, teaching himself everything; he will travel abroad and face danger, and will have hidden illness and suffering. He will be humane and fond of women, and will partake of sacred mysteries until the age of 45; he will have a climacteric in the 3rd year, in the 7th, 11th, 19th, 21st, 27th

35, 45, 53, 66. Having passed through these critical years, he will live 79 years. If he has a mark on the knees [f.154] or the genitals, let him beware of thunder and lightning; let him not take refuge in a tree, but in a house. When he is ill, let him take scrapings from a goat's horn and hairs 5 from the forehead and tail, burn them, mix with sulphur and frankincense, and anoint himself.

The woman born under the sign of Capricorn will be graceful, courageous, a judge of men, a keeper of her own or others' mysteries, she will partake of sacred rites, since such is the nature of this sign; she will be fond of marriage 10 and will hear ingratitude from some, skilled in household management, fond of friends, fond of music, naturally gifted, prosperous, affectionate; she will suffer in the knees, feet, and hands, will experience dizziness of the head and numbness of the hands. Let her wear as an amulet the name of God, evergreen alexanders, sulphurwort, peony, amolia, and apositron, and let her fear nothing. 15 She will be faint-hearted, humane, and devout to God; she will face danger from constriction of breath and will grieve over her own husband; she will have critical years at 5, 7, 11, 19, 35, 45, 53, 67. Having passed through these critical years, she will live 79 years. When she is ill, let her take from a goat as we wrote in the entry for the male.

28 Sign 11 of the Aquarius.

One born under the sign of Aquarius, if they survive the first year and complete 5 years, will live many years. They will be analytical, will be unsettled with a woman, will grieve over a child, will acquire money from a workshop, will receive a deposit and misappropriate it, will be handsome in appearance, curly-haired, fond of beauty, will benefit their own household, self-reliant, austere, quarrelsome, quick to defend themselves, heavy-spirited, prone to anger. Let them not eat dried figs and much beef; but if they fall ill and eat them, they will fall doubly ill, will suffer in the liver and stomach, feet, thighs and hip. Growing old they will open a cause for complaint; should they reach a crisis at 5 and 9 years, they will have great anger, such that death will draw near to them and some of those observing them will despair of them. They will be handsome, cheerful, well-intentioned, will have acquisitions and losses and will have an irregular fortune; they will also inherit something and will be envied; should they reach a crisis

When they fall ill, let them take berries of laurel, wild barley, Jewish asphalt, sulfur and frankincense, mix them with cedar oil and anoint themselves.

She who is born at the time of the sign of Aquarius will be rough, well-spoken, argumentative, she will not leave others without providing for them and will be met with ingratitude; she will be discerning, may have a life of many inheritances, she will rejoice in her children and husband, may meet with a good burial, she will be fanciful, playful and laughing, generous, sharp, hot-tempered, sickly; her illness will stem from the head and the belly and the inner parts, she will suffer in her feet and hands because the sign is very moist, Let her not eat dried figs nor much beef. She will be affectionate, merciful, prudent, may have an uneven fortune and from some people will hear ingratitude; may have a critical period at years 3 and 5, 7, 15, 11, 17, 25, 28, 30, 35, 42. Having passed through these critical periods she will live 82 years. [f. 1554]. When she is ill, let her take grains as we have written above.

The 12th sign of Pisces.

He who is born at the time of the sign of Pisces will fall ill at age 3 and before reaching the age of 19 will disturb the paternal household and harm his parents and grieve his own people in body or in money, or in some necessity. He will be seditious, argumentative, may have children both male and female and will be grieved in the early ones, his livelihood will not fail. He will be a whisperer, quick, amorous, round-headed, somewhat red-haired, ruddy, slow in gait, prudent, fond of drinking, he will be loved by people, will conduct his affairs through much money; when he has it, he will lose it, and when he does not have it, he will find it, and he will be strong among distinguished men, he will be the first to bury his wife, may have an affliction in his bowels, he will live many years. Let him not eat red mullet and leeks. He will be one who travels abroad, a leader of ranks, venerable, well-spoken. He will suffer in his tonsils, belly, and feet. Let him beware of the sword and of heights, for the sake of friends he will risk his own head and will be met with ingratitude, he will hear reproach concerning another woman; may have a critical period at years 3 and 5, 7, 11, 14, 25, 28, 30, 35, 45. having passed through them, he will live for 131 years, he will tread the royal court, he will be known by many friends and will overcome his adversaries and ward off his enemies; he will be under the yoke of holy men and will travel through much land. He shall have a mark on his shin or his feet or his head. When he falls ill, let him take the side-fins of a Fish, mix frankincense and sulfur with cedar oil and anoint himself.

The woman born under the sign of Pisces [f. 156] will be beautiful, fair of face, one-eyed, and will bring harm to her household and her parents. She will be charming; whoever encounters her will fare well. She will be harmed by poisons; in giving birth she will face danger; spirits will afflict her; she will suffer greatly from the womb; she will have pain in her face, head, hands, belly, and feet. She will dwell with a man of noble birth who has previously been widowed. But if she dwells with another who has neither been widowed nor is a kinsman, she will not remain with him. She will have children, both male and female, and will grieve in the early years. She should beware of stormy winds and untimely hours; let her not be found outdoors; she will hear reproach concerning male companions and will grieve on account of her own affairs. Her livelihood will not cease; she will have critical periods at the 3rd year, and the 5th, 7th, 11th, 14th, 25th, 28th, 35th, and 42nd. Having passed through these critical periods, she will live for 82 years. She shall have a mark on her face, or her cheeks, or her feet. When she falls ill, let her take the gills of a Fish and sulfur and frankincense, as we have written above for the male.

F. 157. On the place where the lost item or the thief is to be found.

If the lord of the day or the hour is found in the zodiac sign of Saturn, it is hidden in mountains and high places, or buried in the ground, or in a wall, where there are no seeds, as is the nature of Saturn (1). If in that of Mars, where there are springs and wells; if in that of Jupiter on the 5th [day], on islands or in vineyards; in those of the Moon, in rivers or near waters; in those of the Sun, in caves or bright places; in those of Venus, where there are fruits; in those of Mercury, in a city.

On Fugitives

The horoscope is the fugitive and the time of his discovery; the midheaven is the cause of the flight and the lord of punishments; the western angle is the outcome of the fugitive.

the subterranean point — to which region it goes or where it is about to travel. 1. When Aries is on the ascendant, the fugitive will be found quickly; he will travel toward the east; in appearance he will be well-proportioned, long-faced, somewhat reddish, with light-colored eyes, having large lips and ears, slender in the lower parts, slender and full in the middle; he will have a mark on his head and eyes.

2. When Taurus is on the ascendant, he will be found with difficulty; he will travel toward the east or to his own country; in appearance he will be square-built, round-faced, snub-nosed, hollow-chinned, having large teeth, thick-necked, full in the upper parts, slender in the lower parts, melodious in voice, handsome, agile, with large eyes; he will have a mark on his neck.

3. When Gemini is on the ascendant, he will travel slowly to the place where he fled and will not stay; the one in the first degrees of Gemini up to fifteen degrees will be gray-eyed and round; he will have a mark or scar on his hands; the one in the last degrees will be well-bearded, square-built, with large eyes; he will flee toward the west with a companion; in general, this sign makes one elegant, orderly, clean, handsome, cheerful, and of good complexion.

20 4. When Cancer is on the ascendant, he will be found immediately; he will be short, ruddy, somewhat gray-eyed, slightly snub-nosed, large-headed, bald, small-eyed, with pale lips; he will flee toward the east; he will have a mark or scar on his chest or feet; he will be found in the first degrees.

25 5. When Leo is in the ascendant, he will be found with difficulty; he will be long-faced, with protruding eyes, honey-colored, rather

F. 158. Concerning travels abroad of the Moon as it passes through the 12 signs

1. When the Moon is in Aries, travel; for you will return quickly and achieve what you desire.

2. In Taurus, likewise.

3. In Gemini it is beneficial to travel abroad; for they will return having fared well, even if they are delayed.

4. In Cancer, those who depart will spend a long time in foreign lands and return with loss; but the one who goes abroad fares well.

5. In Leo, do not travel far on the first day; for great troubles will come from evildoers and you will barely be saved; the second day is more tolerable, but the journey will be in vain.

6. Traveling under Virgo, you will spend much time abroad and will be well-disposed toward the people there, moving from place to place; and those who are traveling away from home will return safely to their own.

7. Under Libra, neither good nor bad, and the journey is without danger and without gain.

8. Under Scorpio, the journey is profitably good.

9. Traveling under Sagittarius, you will go farther than the road set before you; let the one abroad return quickly, but with foolishness.

10. Under Capricorn, the journey is long, fruitless, and gloomy; but the one returning does so quickly and without harm.

11. Under Aquarius, let the first day pass you by, then travel on the second; it turns out to be profitable for you.

12. Under Pisces, travel for military service or war.

Aenigma astrologicum.

In codicibus astrologicis Graecis aenigmata raro invenimus, multa autem in populo suspicamur vulgata esse, quod astrologia slavica his aenigmatibus uberrima et ipsa ex fontibus Graecis orta nobis testatur. In hoc textu ναός tempus est, στύλος annus, πόλεις ιβ' duodecim menses, δοκοὶ τριάκοντα triginta dies, γυναῖκες ιβ' duodecim horae.

F. 160v. Ἔστι ναὸς καὶ στύλος ἐν τῷ ναῷ ἔχων πόλεις ιβ', ἑκάστη πόλις ἑτέρας μὲν τριάκοντα δοκούς, ταύταις περιτρέχουσι γυναῖκες καθ' ἑκάστην δοκὸν ιβ'.

De inventione thesauri.

F. 160v. Ἰδὼν ἐφ' ἑνὶ λάρνακι ἀσύμφωνα στοιχεῖα ἑπτά· α, β, δ, ο, ε, θ, χ. α - ἀποβὰς, β - βήματα, δ - τέσσαρα, ο - ὀρύξας, ε - εὑρήσεις, θ - θησαυρόν, χ - χρυσίου. Τὸ γὰρ α λέγει ἀπόδος, β - βασιλεῖ, δ - Διονύσῳ, ο - δν εὕρες, ε - ἐνθάδε, θ - θησαυρόν, χ - χρυσίου. Οὐχὶ σοί, μοὶ χαρίζῃς τὸ χρυσίον, ἄλλο καταθέμενος· ἄκουε γὰρ συνετῶς· α - ἀνελόμενοι, β - βαδίσαντες, δ - διελέσθαι, ο - δν εὕρηται, ε - ἐνθάδε, θ - θησαυρόν, χ - χρυσίου.

De horis bonis et malis. (1)

F. 161v. Ἡμέρα α'.
Ἡλίου ὥρα α' εἰς πάντα καλή.

An Astrological Riddle.

In the Greek astrological codices we rarely find riddles, but we suspect that many were widely circulated among the people, as Slavic astrology — itself derived from Greek sources — testifies to us, being very rich in such riddles. In this text, ναός means time, στύλος means year, πόλεις ιβ' means twelve months, δοκοί τριάκοντα means thirty days, γυναίκες ιβ' means twelve hours.

F. 160. There is a temple, and in the temple a pillar having 12 cities; each city has thirty beams of its own, and around each beam run 12 women.

On the Discovery of a Treasure.

F. 160. Having seen on a single chest seven discordant letters: α, β, δ, ο, ε, θ, χ. α – having stepped off, β – steps, δ – four, ο – having dug, ε – you will find, θ – a treasure, χ – of gold. For the α says: give back, β – to the king, δ – to Dionysus, ο – which you found, ε – here, θ – the treasure, χ – of gold. Not to you; do you give me the gold as a gift, having deposited another? For listen carefully: α – having taken up, β – having walked, δ – to divide, ο – which has been found, ε – here, θ – the treasure, χ – of gold.

On Lucky and Unlucky Hours. (1)

F. 161. The H day Hour 1.
Hour 1 of the Sun: good in all things.
Hour 2 of Venus: bad, very bad.
Hour 3 of Mercury: use with confidence.
15 Hour 4 of the Moon: ordinary.
Saturn's hour 5th — deal with it; good.
Jupiter's hour 6th — successful in all things.
Mars's hour 7th — do nothing whatsoever.
Sun's hour 8th — worst for all things.
20 Venus's hour 9th — dangerous.

< On the sea urchin and the euanthion >

If you grind the navel-piece of a sea urchin and give it 5 to those troubled by epilepsy, the epilepsy ceases immediately; give it with honey as many times as possible.
On the euanthion stone, which we called all-golden, Aphrodite is engraved with the hairs and the braided locks of her head bound up, and the root of the plant and a nightingale's 10 tongue are placed beneath it, and they are sealed in; the one who wears this will be beloved by all people and well-known and sweet-spoken and alone held in reverence by people, but fearsome to wild beasts and demons; for every wild beast will flee from him.

F. 125. < About hoopoe >

15 The hoopoe is a creature that flies through the air, seven-colored, regal, having a crest of two fingers' length that opens and closes, and it is four-colored, corresponding to the seasons of the year;
this is called by some a cuckoo and a poupas, and the natural power of this creature is most wondrous; for if someone cuts 20 it open alive and takes its heart still quivering and alive and swallows it while standing directly facing the Sun, at the beginning of the 1st or 2nd hour and on the 7th day, that is, of the weeks, with the Moon being in the east, and also drinks milk of a black cow with a little honey from

The honey compound is as follows: 1 cotyle of honey, 2 drachmas of very finely ground magnet, and seven hearts of the eryngo plant; having ground these, mix in the honey, and keep also another magnet on which this bird is engraved, which must be soaked in the honey compound; and whenever you wish to foreknow concerning whatever you desire, take the engraved magnet and wear it around your neck, and you will foreknow all things concerning whatever you wish. And if you also cast another heart or liver of the hoopoe into the compound after grinding it thoroughly, you will be more powerful and still more retentive of memory; but lest you infest your body with lice after doing this (for it is customary for a multitude of lice to break out), it is necessary first to anoint yourself with this ointment: 1 cotyle of oil, 2 drachmas of very finely ground wild stavesacre; having ground this well and mixed it together, keep it stored and ready; whenever therefore you anoint, apply this while going to bed.

Astrologica Rossica.

Ad calcem huius libri notanda est etiam astrologia Rossica. Testimonia nova de astrologia Graeca in codicibus Rossicis sine dubio latent, cum translatores nostri ex integris fontibus astrologiam Graecam haurirent. Vestigia Rhetorii in quodam tractatu slavico de kalendis, nonis et idibus ἀγαθῇ τύχῃ Prof. V. N. Beneševič invenit (vide W. Beneschewitsch, Spuren der Werke des Aegypters Rhetorios, des Livius Andronicus und des Ovidius in altslavischer Uebersetzung, in Byzant. Zeitschr., 1925, vol XXV, p. 310-312). Hic autem voluimus tantum affinitatem astrologiae Rossicae cum divinatione Graeca demonstrare ; ideo exempli causa fragmentum brontologii slavici saec. xiv ex cod. Bibl. Acad. Scientiarum 13.3.17 cum interpretatione Graeca edituri sumus.

Astrology Rossica.

At the end of this book, Russian astrology must also be noted. New testimonies concerning Greek astrology doubtless lie hidden in Russian manuscripts, since our translators drew Greek astrology from complete sources. Prof. V. N. Beneševič found traces of Rhetorius in a certain Slavic treatise on calends, nones, and ides, ἀγαθῇ τύχῃ (see W. Beneschewitsch, Spuren der Werke des Aegypters Rhetorius, des Livius Andronicus und des Ovidius in altslavischer Uebersetzung, in Byzant. Zeitschr., 1925, vol. XXV, p. 310–312). Here, however, we wished only to demonstrate the affinity of Russian astrology with Greek divination; therefore, by way of example, we shall publish a fragment of a Slavic brontologion of the 14th century from cod. Bibl. Acad. Scientiarum 13.3.17, together with its Greek interpretation.

[Month of July]

... And if at night there shall be thunder or lightning in the Arabian land, thunder or lightning in the Arabian land, much shall come to pass — declaration of wars in the upper regions

... between themselves ... will quarrel ... so that some will fall ill and perish, and the rest will be ruined and destroyed — those who survived from those battles will gain victory ... and there will be ...

to the eastern and western stations

But if at night there is thunder or lightning, there will be an abundance of grain in Arabia, and it signifies war in Ethiopia; other nations will make war upon one another as far as Babylon; the western nations will fall sick and perish, and those of these people who survive will conquer as far as Ethiopia; and there will be great instability in the western and eastern lands.

But if there is an earthquake during the day, there will be a stirring of the barbarian land and of the pagans, and the leaders of men and the men themselves — nation shall rise against nation with fury, and then grain will also diminish.

But if an earthquake occurs during the day, there will be a stirring of the barbarian land and the death of wicked men, and their rulers will be harmed, as will their generals and soldiers, and nation will rise up against nation with great fury; then also a destruction of grain.

But if an earthquake occurs at night, great evil will be done—

But if an earthquake occurs at night, great evil will come to pass—рится въ градѣ потом будет варваръскыи языкъ въстанет, болѣре же их велици смѣрятся и прѣселятся от мѣста того и измѣнивъшеи си мѣсто злѣ погыбнут и, дъжд съпролѣтія оудръжится съвръшающу же ся лѣту будуть дъждеве велици зѣло и жита многаа будеть, паче же познаа и прязи мнозіи будуть и млад звѣръ погыбнет.

ἐν πόλει ταύτῃ, ἔπειτα βάρβαροι ἐπαναστήσονται, μεγιστᾶνες δὲ αὐτῶν ἡττηθήσονται καὶ ἀποδημήσουσι ἀπὸ τῆς χώρας ταύτης καὶ ἀποδημήσαντες κακῶς θανατωθήσονται, καὶ ὑετὸς ἐν ἀρχῇ θέρους γενήσεται, θέρους δὲ τελειουμένου ὄμβροι πολλοὶ καὶ σίτου πλῆθος ἔσται· μᾶλλον δὲ γίνωσκε, ὅτι πολέμοι πολλοὶ ἔσονται καὶ γέννημα θηρίων φθαρθήσεται.

—it will be done in the city; then the barbarian nation will rise up, but the greater among them will be humbled, and after that the earth will tremble frequently, but Romania will be strengthened.

When the year is completed, there will be very great rains and much grain; and especially late crops and much flax there will be, and they will be even more prosperous.

in this city, then barbarians shall rise up, and their nobles shall be defeated and shall depart from this land, and having departed they shall die a wretched death, and rain shall come at the beginning of summer, and as summer draws to its end there shall be much rain and an abundance of grain; but know above all that there shall be many wars and the offspring of wild beasts shall be destroyed.

De codice Latino Acad. XX Ab-III1.

In hoc astrologorum Graecorum Catalogo codicem.Acad.XX Ab-III astrologicum latinum varios tractatus ex Arabico translatos continentem describere et opuscula inedita edere non inutile fore speramus : revera astrologia Arabica, ex Graecis fontibus derivata, cum Orientis Graeci tum Occidentis latini astrologiam denuo excitavit et aluit. Auctores Arabici, quos cod.Ac. praebet, saec.IX-XI floruerunt : Alfargani = Alfagranus codicis (circa 883), Abū-el-Chasan Thabit ben Qorra = patris Asem Thebit filius Chore (826-901), Gergis philosophus (saec. XI), Alqabisi = Alcabizius (877), Sachl ben Bišr = Zaclis et Cehen Bembris Israelita (c. 820), Mašalla Meseallah (770-873), Ishac ben Suleiman = Ysaac filius Salomonis (circa 950), Abū-Ma'šar = Albumasar (806-885). — Interpretes autem latini saec. XI-XII vivebant : Constantinus Africanus (1080-85), Gerardus Cremonensis (c. 1187) et Ioannes Hispalensis (c. 1150). Ideo in cod. Ac. XX Ab-III1 duae aetates astrologiae, cum Arabicae tum latinae, praebentur. Praeterea ad astrologiam saec. XVIII nos revocat nomen possessoris ipsius, Academiae Rossicae sodalis, G. W. Kraft senior, qui apud aequales temporum illorum et physicae et astrologiae peritissimus habebatur.

Exstat epithalamium in honorem L. Euleri mathematici celeberrimi, ubi hi versus germanici leguntur :

Ihr könnt von unserm wackern Krafft,
Dem hoch berühmten Freund der Sternen,
Was diese Zeit für Einfluss schafft,
Nach meinem Wunsch, erkennen lernen.

(Vide Pekarskj, Historia Academiae scientiarum (russ.), t. I, 1870, p. 461).

In epistula, ut videtur, ad Müllerum (22-II 1738) rationes divinandi historicas, astrologicas, meteorologicas ipse Kraft easdem fere profert : Ihre hochedelgeb. haben mich mit dem Parallel der Historie und Astrologie, welches von einem Nahmen bekräfftigt worden ist, der mir weit fremder als Asimuth und Almucantart klinget, sehr erfreuet. Es ist mir unter dessen ein neues Parallel eingefallen, die Historici sind auch denen Meteorologis ähnlich.

From the Latin Codex Acad. XX Ab-III1.

In this Catalogue of Greek Astrologers we hope it will not be without value to describe the codex Acad. XX Ab-III, a Latin astrological manuscript containing various treatises translated from Arabic, and to publish its unedited short works: indeed, Arabic astrology, derived from Greek sources, once again stimulated and nourished both the astrology of the Greek East and the Latin West. The Arabic authors provided by cod. Ac. flourished in the 9th–11th centuries: Alfargani = Alfagranus of the codex (c. 883), Abu-al-Hasan Thabit ben Qorra, father, and Asem Thebit, son of Chore (826–901), Gergis the philosopher (11th century), Alqabisi = Alcabizius (877), Sahl ben Bishr = Zachlis and Cehen Bembris Israelita (c. 820), Mašalla Meseallah (770–873), Ishaq ben Sulayman Ysaac filius Salomonis (c. 950), Abū-Maʿshar = Albumasar (806–885). The Latin translators, however, lived in the 11th–12th centuries: Constantinus Africanus (1080–85), Gerardus Cremonensis (c. 1187), and Joannes Hispalensis (c. 1150). Thus in cod. Ac. XX Ab-III two ages of astrology are represented, both Arabic and Latin. Furthermore, the name of its owner himself, a fellow of the Russian Academy, G. W.Kraft senior, who was regarded among the contemporaries of his time as most expert in both natural philosophy and astrology.

There exists an epithalamium in honor of L. Euler, the most celebrated mathematician, where these German verses are read:

You can learn from our worthy Krafft,
The highly renowned friend of the stars,
What influence this time brings forth,
According to my wish, come to understand.

(See Pekarskj, Historia Academiae scientiarum (russ.), t. I, 1870, p. 461).

In a letter, it appears, to Müller (22-II 1738), Kraft himself puts forward nearly the same historical, astrological, and meteorological methods of divination: Your most noble excellency has greatly delighted me with the parallel between history and astrology, which has been confirmed by a name that sounds far more foreign to me than Azimuth and Almucantarat. In the meantime, a new parallel has occurred to me: historians are also similar to meteorologists.

In folio primo et vacuo notulam manu XVI saec. legimus : « Gelenus (l. Galenus) in libro de spermate : pater Alexandri Magni per suam mathematicam et astronomicam rationem praecavit se ne cognosceret uxorem suam Olimpiadem nisi talibus horis in quibus ex operatione planetarum et signorum figuram traheres Alexandri et non a parentibus ».

F. 2-12. Incipit liber de aggregationibus scientie stellarum ex principiis celestium motuum, quem Ametus filius Ameti compilavit qui dictus est Alfagranus, 30 continens capitula (Cap. 1, incipit : Numerus mensium anni Arabum et aliorum omnium est 12 menses. Arabum vero menses sunt : Almuharan — Cap. 30, des. : Iam ergo declaravimus de eclipsibus solis et lune quod sufficit intelligenti et in hac arte valenti. Expletus est liber Ameti Alfagrani). —Textus a Gerardo Cremonensi translatus, edita est paraphrasis tantum huius versionis (Francofurti 1590). Vide F. Inc.: Here let us begin to describe for you the titles of all the books on astronomy and the first book that he published was called Menrach Sysas (1. Nemroth the Giant: Cf. Cat. V, n1, p. 86 n. 2; Charles Haskins, Nimrod the astronomer in RomanicnReview, V, 1914, p. 205 ff.).

On the first and blank folio we read a note in a sixteenth-century hand: "Gelenus (read: Galenus) in his book on semen: the father of Alexander the Great, through his mathematical and astronomical reasoning, took precautions so that he would not lie with his wife Olympias except at such hours in which, from the operation of the planets and signs, you would draw forth the figure of Alexander and not from the parents."

Ff. 2–12. Here begins the book on the compendium of the science of the stars from the principles of celestial motions, which Ametus son of Ametus, who is called Alfraganus, compiled, containing 30 chapters (Chapter 1 begins: The number of months of the year of the Arabs and of all others is 12 months. The months of the Arabs are indeed: Almuharan. Chapter 30 ends: We have now therefore explained concerning the eclipses of the sun and moon what is sufficient for one who understands and is skilled in this art. The book of Ametus Alfraganus is completed). — The text translated by Gerard of Cremona; only a paraphrase of this version has been published (Frankfurt, 1590). See F. Wüstenfeld, Die Uebersetzungen Arabischer Werke in das Lateinische seit dem XI. Jahrhundert, p. 63. Cf. also Cat. astr. V, 1, p. 89, n. 2. Ff. 12–18. Four treatises. 1) The eccentric circle is called either that of the eccentric apogee or of the eccentric center, according to the position of the equation which exists at the middle of the world. — A short work, namely of Thabit ben Qorra. (1) 2) f. 15v. On the latitude of the planets (The latitude of a planet is defined as the distance, however, of the greater quantity). 3) f. 16. The wandering stars which are called planets are 7 — — such as Capricorn, Aquarius, and Pisces. Here there are also found six astrological verses, beginning: Est tua Saturne domus eglocerontis et urne. 4) F. 17. A chapter on the science of the quantity of the longitude of the head of Aries and of Libra from the equator of the day at every hour (While

F. 19-21. Treatise of father Asem Thebit son of Chore on the motion of accession and recession (I shall imagine the sphere of the equator of the day which will be retrograde at opposition. Completed is the book of Thebit son of Chore on those things which require explanation before the Almagest is read). The text translated by Gerard of Cremona is found in three Augsburg editions of the years 1480, 1509, and 1518. See Wüstenfeld, op. cit. p. 65. and Cat. astr. V, 1, p. 88, n. 2.

F. 21-24. Here begins the book of Gergis the philosopher on the expertise of astronomical discipline (The Almighty God placed beneath the line of the sun or beneath the line of the moon. Completed is the book of Gergis the philosopher). — See Steinschneider, Die Europäischen Übersetzungen aus dem Arabischen bis Mitte des 17. Jahrhundert, (Sitzungsberichte d. philos.-histor. Kl. K. Epistola Mašallah in pluviis et ventis (1).

Auctor Epistolae in pluviis et ventis Maš-Allah-al-Misri, qui apud Al-Mansur chalifam et successorem eius vivebat (cf. Suter, Die Mathematiker und Astronomen der Araber, 1900, p. 5, n° 8), plurimum ad scientias Arabum promovendas contulit. Opuscula autem Masallae praecipue in translationibus graecis et latinis conservantur. Secundum librum viri doctissimi Wüstenfeld sex tractatus enumerari possunt: 1) Epistola in rebus eclipsis solis et lunae, 2) De receptione planetarum, 3) De electionibus, 4) De interrogationibus, 5) De compositione et usu astrolabii, 6) De orbe. Sed litterarum hereditas Masallae nunc ab eruditis anquiritur et multiplicatur : quaedam nova ut « Septem Cavium paraphrasis» in cod.Ac.XX Ab.-III$_1$ latent.

Ex tribus formis tractatuum meteorologicorum medio aevo notorum : 1) paraphrasis Aristotelis, 2) prognostica popularia, 3) meteorologia astrologica, tertiae formae Epistola in pluviis convenit. In editionibus duo tractatus meteorologici Arabum : Alkindus, De pluviis, imbribus et ventis et aeris mutatione (Venet. 1507 et Paris. 1540) et Gaphar, De imbribus (edit. ibidem) noti sunt. Nomina interpretum : Drogonem (Hugonem Sanctaliensem), codd. Paris. 7316bis et 10251) et Ioannem Hispalensem libri mss. in lucem proferunt. Epistolam in pluviis Steinschneider eandem putabat esse atque Alkindi tractatum. Hoc opusculum vero cum Alkindi tractatu edito non congruit, interpres Epistulae autem Ioannes Hispalensis, non Drogon, est, veluti modus elocutionis, minutum signi (momentum signi), guerra etc., et ipsa extrema pars codicis saec. XIII exarata,ubi Epistola legitur,testantur. Ad calcem tractatus tria opuscula aliena : 1) Si volueris reperire dies et puncta lune, 3) Si interrogatus fueris, ut aliquis cum aliqua cubuerit, 3) De statu persone adiuncta sunt.

Epistle of Māshāʾallāh on Rains and Winds ([1]).

The author of the Epistle on Rains and Winds, Māshāʾallāh al-Miṣrī, who lived at the court of the Caliph al-Manṣūr and his successor (cf. Suter, Die Mathematiker und Astronomen der Araber, 1900, p. 5, nº 8), contributed greatly to the advancement of the sciences among the Arabs. The minor works of Māshāʾallāh are preserved chiefly in Greek and Latin translations. According to the learned Wüstenfeld, six treatises may be enumerated: 1) Epistle on the Matters of Solar and Lunar Eclipses, 2) On the Reception of the Planets, 3) On Elections, 4) On Interrogations, 5) On the Composition and Use of the Astrolabe, 6) On the Sphere. Yet the literary legacy of Māshāʾallāh is now being investigated and expanded by scholars: certain new works, such as the "Paraphrase of the Seven Chapters," lie hidden in cod. Ac. XX Ab.-III. Among the three forms of meteorological treatises known in the Middle Ages — 1) paraphrase of Aristotle, 2) popular prognostica, 3) astrological meteorology — the Epistle on Rains belongs to the third form. In printed editions, two meteorological treatises by Arab authors are known: Alkindus, De pluviis, imbribus et ventis et aeris mutatione (Venice 1507 and Paris 1540) and Gaphar, De imbribus (edited in the same volumes). The names of the translators — Drogon (Hugo Sanctaliensis), codd.Paris. 7316bis and 10251 — and John of Seville are brought to light by manuscript copies of the book. Steinschneider believed the Epistle on Rains to be identical with the treatise of Alkindus. This opuscule, however, does not agree with the published treatise of Alkindus; moreover, the translator of the Epistle is John of Seville, not Drogon, as is attested by the style of expression, the term minutum signi (momentum signi), guerra, etc., and by the final portion of the codex itself, written in the thirteenth century, where the Epistle is found. Appended at the end of the treatise are three extraneous opuscules: 1) Si volucris reperire dies et puncta lune, 2) Si interrogatus fueris, ut aliquis cum aliqua cubuerit, 3) De statu persone.

Dixit Mesellach: Inspice planetas inferiores et partes suorum caelorum et scias, quod caelum Lunae extenditur usque ad caelum Saturni et ab eo accipit Luna et assignat multum de roribus et grandinibus et Luna recipit vaporem terrae. Quando ergo continuabitur a caelo Saturni usque ad caelum Lunae et fuerit Luna descendens et Saturnus stans, erit signum pluviarum durantium paulatim, et accidit cum nubes obviant sibi in aere pars parti adinvicem. Si autem fuerit Saturnus descendens et Luna ascendens et fuerit porta caelorum aperta unius ad aliud, illud est significatio pluviarum in illa hora, praecipue si fuerit Saturnus in Cancro et Luna in Capricorno et concordaverint caudae, aut fuerit cauda in Aquario et descendit unum eorum et aliud ascendit et addiderit Luna in incessu, annus ille erit valde pluviosus et aquosus. Si autem fuerit Luna cum hac narratione in Venere et occidentalis et descendenti, Venus significat multitudinem ventorum et rorum et durationem eorum. Et si fuerit Saturnus retrogradus et Luna minus incedens, minuetur in numero suo et cauda in Aquario, significat obscuritatum multitudinem et paucitatem pluviarum et constrictionem frigoris et nives et multiplicabuntur, usque quo accederat, nives usque ad 6 diaetas vel plus, et scias, quod Luna ligatur in caelo Saturno. Cum ergo fuerit Saturnus in Cancro et Luna in Capricorno vel Piscibus vel Scorpione, significatio est aquarum, et in Libra, quae est exaltatio Saturni, et Aquario, domo Saturni, significantur durationes pluviae et multitudines nivis. Et si fuerit Saturnus in Aquario, Luna vero etiam in Leone sibi opposito et unum eorum ascendens et aliud descendens, significat copiam aquarum, et quantumcumque procedet Luna usque ad Leonem descendens et descendent ad ripam aquae fontium quae sunt in Aquario, et hoc significat pluvias. Et si ambo fuerint ascendentia, erunt venti fortes et calidi cum obscuritate et fient pluviae, donec descendant, post erunt venti et cessabuntur pluviae. Et quando fuerit Saturnus in alio loco ab isto, scilicet quod sit in Ariete vel Tauro, vel Geminis, nec erit in signis in quibus confortatur natura sua, non erunt pluviae. Et Māshāllāh said: Observe the inferior planets and the portions of their heavens, and know that the heaven of the Moon extends all the way to the heaven of Saturn, and from it the Moon receives and distributes a great deal of dews and hailstorms, and the Moon receives the vapor of the earth. When, therefore, a conjunction occurs from the heaven of Saturn to the heaven of the Moon, and the Moon is descending and Saturn is stationary, this will be a sign of rains that fall gradually, and it occurs when clouds meet one another in the air, part against part. But if Saturn is descending and the Moon is ascending, and the gate of the heavens stands open from one to the other, that is a sign of rains in that hour — especially if Saturn is in Cancer and the Moon is in Capricorn and the Tail is in agreement with them, or if the Tail is in Aquarius and one of them descends while the other ascends and the Moon increases in her course — that year will be very rainy and wet. But if the Moon in this configuration is with Venus, and Venus is western and descending, Venus signifies an abundance of winds and dews and their long duration.And if Saturn is retrograde and the Moon is moving more slowly, it will diminish in its number, and the Tail in Aquarius signifies a multitude of overcast skies and a scarcity of rains, a tightening of cold and snow, and these will increase — as far as they will extend — snows up to 6 days' journey or more. And know that the Moon is bound in the heaven to Saturn. When, therefore, Saturn is in Cancer and the Moon is in Capricorn, or Pisces, or Scorpio, the indication is of waters; and in Libra, which is the exaltation of Saturn, and in Aquarius, the house of Saturn, long-lasting rains and abundant snowfall are signified. And if Saturn is in Aquarius and the Moon likewise in Leo, its opposite sign, and one of them is ascending and the other descending, it signifies an abundance of waters; and insofar as the Moon continues toward Leo descending, they descend to the banks of the water-springs that are in Aquarius, and this signifies rains. And if both are ascending, there will be strong and hot winds with overcast skies, and rains will occur until they descend; thereafter there will be winds and the rains will cease.And when Saturn is in another place than this — that is to say, in Aries, or Taurus, or Gemini — and is not in the signs in which its nature is strengthened, there will be no rains. Cum ergo volueris scire illud, inspice introitum Solis minuto Arietis vel 19 gradibus Scorpionis, et si fuerint planetae domini suorum caelorum et inspiciunt eam et adiuvat eos Luna, significat illud multitudinem pluviarum. Know that there are places where rains gather, as in Armenia, in elevated locations in the 7th climate, from the Sun's entry into the 19th degree of Scorpio until its entry into the 19th degree of Taurus; and this is because the heat of the Sun does not intensify in the third climate, and that darkness in the air will warm and settle in the air, but when the Sun is at the 19th degree, it will intensify. From the degree of Taurus up to the 19th degree of Scorpio, rain will multiply in the southern villages † and those which are on the southern side, and the villages which are near the equinoctial line belong to the Blacks and the Zanj and Oadens and the southern villages, and the villages which are near the day's equator in the first climate also look upon it from the first minute of Aries and Libra at the root of signification † and where the planets of rains are from the Sun's entry into the 10th degree; afterwards they will be equalized, and if Venus is with the Sun and the Moon conjoins, and if certain planets are of the hours of the Moon, this is a signification of rain, and then the stronger signification is that of the Moon, because it possesses moisture; and whatever planets are in the 19th degree of Taurus, this is a signification of rain, yet not like the signification of the Moon, which is opposite to the sky of Saturn.When therefore you wish to know this, examine the Sun's entry at the minute of Aries or the 19th degree of Scorpio; and if the planets are lords of their own heavens and aspect it, and the Moon assists them, this signifies an abundance of rains. But if the Moon does not aspect the lord of the heaven of its humor, nor the planets, and it is waning in its course, this signifies: rains at that time; and likewise the Moon signifies as Saturn does when it is under the rays of the Sun or in its opposition. For it then signifies regarding rains what it receives in these two hours and casts it upon the place. Then examine the position of Saturn and the Moon. If they are as I have described, and you wish to know the hour of rain in that year, observe: when the Sun is in Aquarius and the Moon turns with it, this signifies a scarcity of rain; likewise if Venus turns with the Sun in that sign, and likewise Mercury; and if they conjoin, the rain will not cease in that year until Venus and Mercury separate from the Sun. If therefore the Sun is in Aquarius — that is, the house of Saturn — and the Moon is in Leo, namely the house of the Sun, signifies abundant rains and so in that hour. And if Venus and Mercury are with the Sun, it signifies abundant rains. And if the Sun is in Pisces or in Aries and the Moon is in Cancer or in Libra, or in Virgo, it signifies rain; as for the first part, Sagittarius also signifies it through the pure vapor that is within it. And if Mars aspects the Sun, or the Moon, or Venus, or Mercury, or one of two or a varied combination, it signifies abundant rains — especially when they aspect each other by a quartile or opposite aspect, which then signifies great and fearful phenomena, such as lightning, thunder, and the like. And if Mars is retrograde, that rain will be fearful. And if the Moon is in Taurus and Mars in Scorpio, or the Moon in Scorpio and Mars in Taurus — which is the exaltation of the Moon — and the Sun is in Aquarius, or in Pisces, or in Aries, it signifies abundant rains, lightning, and thunderbolts. And if Mars is in Pisces, and the Moon in Sagittarius and the Sun in Pisces, it signifies rain and lightning.And if the Sun is in Scorpio or in Sagittarius and the Moon in Scorpio or Sagittarius, or Pisces, and Mars in Gemini or in Virgo, or in Taurus, it signifies a stirring of lightning and rains, though not in great quantity; and the continuance of lightning occurs with the Sun in Aries, since that is the house of Mars. When moreover it aspects the Moon or is in Pisces — which sign is the exaltation of Venus — and the Sun is in Scorpio, the house of Mars, or the Sun in Libra, the house of Venus, there will be cold winds; and when the Sun departs into Capricorn or Aquarius, the houses of Saturn. Note also that the heaven of Jupiter and Mercury are joined together, as likewise are those of Venus and Mars. For the superior planets have no power in themselves and by themselves, nor likewise do the inferior planets, except through the superior ones. When therefore Mercury aspects Jupiter in the revolution of the years which I have described, and one of them is cadent and the other ascending, and the cadent one aspects the ascending one, this signifies in that year an abundance of winds, since the heaven of Jupiter is a multiplier of winds and Mercury signifies winds. When moreover the Moon is in Taurus and Mercury aspects her from Aquarius or from Pisces, and Mercury at the root of the revolution is received by Jupiter, it signifies winds. And if Mercury is in Aquarius and the Moon in Leo, or Mercury in Pisces and the Moon in Sagittarius or in Virgo, or the Moon with Jupiter, or Mercury in that sign, it signifies winds. When Jupiter is in his exaltation and Mercury is in Aries or in Pisces and aspects Jupiter and draws into conjunction with him, then Si aspexerit Saturnus Lunam, erunt grandines laedentes messes et interficientes volucres, et si fuerit Luna in revolutione in Scorpione aut in Sagittario, aut in Aquario, aut in Piscibus. Si fuerit Mars Lunam aspiciens ab opposito, infra quod non sit in Scorpione, significat diminutionem praedicti. Et si fuerit a Scorpione, non faciet dampnum propter vaporem qui est in Scorpione. Et quando Venus fuerit in Scorpione aut in Sagittario, aut in Tauro, significat pluvias. Retrogradatio Veneris in Scorpione aut Capricorno, aut Aquario significat pluvias multas. Et quando recesserit Luna in fundamento quaestionis a planeta superiori et applicaverit planetae inferiori vel aequo, significabit pluvias. Cum vero Mars erit cadens et Venus ascendens meridionalis, significat pluviam, cum aspexerit eum Luna a Leone aut Virgine. Cum Venus fuerit sub radiis et aspexerit eam Luna a Piscibus Venere exeunte in Tauro vel inspexerit eam in Ariete Luna et in Libra, significat multam pluviam in illo tempore. Et si absciderit Mars aspectum suum, minuet ex illa pluvia. Cum fuerit Luna et Venus in revolutione et Mercurius in Piscibus, significantur pluviae. Et si Luna vel Venus erunt in Aquario, erunt pluviae. Si autem fuerint in Ariete aut in Tauro, significatur diminutio pluviae. Luna etiam in revolutione opposita Soli aut Saturno, aut Veneri signiwinds are indicated. And if Mercury is in Scorpio, Jupiter in Taurus or Leo, and the Moon continues from Aquarius or from Pisces, or Taurus, or Leo in conjunction with Mercury, winds are indicated. And if Mercury is in Scorpio and Jupiter in Taurus or in Sagittarius, and the Moon continues from Gemini or from Virgo in conjunction with it, winds are indicated. And if the Sun is in Scorpio or Sagittarius, or Aquarius, or Libra, or Pisces, or Aries, and Mercury is under the rays of the Sun, many winds are indicated. And if Venus aspects it, there will be rains. And if Mars aspects it, there will be lightning and thunderbolts. And if the Moon passes through it, there will be rain. And observe Mercury as I have said. The sky of Mars and Venus are gathered together. And observe in the revolution of the year the Moon and Venus regarding their opposition or in the hour of the aspect which signifies what will be, and it will not be completed in that hour. But if it is from Scorpio, the rain will not last, when Venus is in Taurus or in Aquarius, and the Moon aspects it from Scorpio and Mercury is with the Moon, there will be rains with lightning and thunder and there will be strong hailstorms.If Saturn aspects the Moon, there will be hailstorms injuring the harvests and killing the birds, and if the Moon is in the revolution in Scorpio or in Sagittarius, or in Aquarius, or in Pisces. If Mars is aspecting the Moon from opposition, within which it is not in Scorpio, it signifies a diminution of the aforesaid. And if it is from Scorpio, it will cause no harm on account of the vapor that is in Scorpio. And when Venus is in Scorpio or in Sagittarius, or in Taurus, it signifies rains. The retrogradation of Venus in Scorpio or Capricorn, or Aquarius signifies many rains. And when the Moon recedes in the foundation of the question from a superior planet and applies to an inferior or equal planet, it will signify rains. But when Mars is cadent and Venus is ascending and southern, it signifies rain, when the Moon aspects it from Leo or Virgo. When Venus is under the rays and the Moon aspects it from Pisces, with Venus departing in Taurus, or the Moon aspects it in Aries and in Libra, it signifies much rain at that time. And if Mars cuts off its aspect, it will diminish that rain. When the Moon and Venus are in the revolution and Mercury is in Pisces, rains are indicated.And if the Moon or Venus are in Aquarius, there will be rains. But if they are in Aries or in Taurus, a diminution of rain is indicated. The Moon also in the revolution opposed to the Sun or Saturn, or Venus, significat corruptionem acris et pluviae a rore. Si fuerint Luna et dominus suae domus addentes, erit corruptio ex multo rore, si Deus voluerit.

Quando intraverit Sol primum minutum Scorpionis, accipe ascendentem. Si fuerit signum aquosum et Luna etiam sit in aquoso et Venus similiter, erit principium minuti 20^1 gradus pluviosum et finis hyemis humectans. Si fuerit Venus occidentalis debilis et Luna et ascendens in aquosis signis, erit similiter principium et finis humidus. Hodie quod Venus sub radiis est, sicut mulier sub viro, facit descendere aquas. Si fuerit Venus orientalis a Sole, erit principium siccum. Si vero non fuerit ascendens ex aquosis, nec Luna fuerit in aquoso, erit principium hyemis pluviosum et postremum siccum. Et si ascendens fuerit ignitus et dominus suus in aquoso, tunc erit tempus temperatum nec cum multa, nec cum pauca pluvia et inclinabitur aliquantulum ad humiditates et fulgetra. Et si fuerit ascendens ignitus et eius dominus ignitus in signo, significabuntur durationes pluviarum in illo anno. Et si fuerit ascendens igneus et dominus suus in signo ventoso, erunt paucae pluviae et multi venti in illo anno. Et si fuerit dominus horae humidus et roridus, erit annus bonus. Et si fuerit siccus, corrumpet annum. Et si fuerit ascendens signum terreum et suus dominus in signo aquoso, erit annus bonus multis pluviis et roribus. Et si dominus horae in signo igneo et prope dominus in anlguo, erit in illo anno siccitas magna. Et si furit ascendens aquosum et dominus suus in signo ventoso, erunt in anno illo multi rores et venti et nebulae. Et si fuerit ascendens igneus et suus dominus in signo aquoso, erit illa quarta illius anni multum humida cum pauca pluvia vel multiplicabitur serenitas et minuetur pluvia. Et si fuerit ascendens ventosus et dominus suus in signo terreo, significat multos ventos, paucos rores. Similiter quando Sol coniungetur in ascendente cum aliquo trium superiorum et aliquis eorum sit in 4^a domo, significantur pluviae in prima quarta mensis vel anni, similiter si fuerit in 7^a, erit in media quarta anni, similiter si in 10^a, erit ros in tribus quartis mensis vel anni, similiter si in 4^a, erit illud in fine anni, similiter in suo opposito et in suo quadrato praecipue in hyeme festinat Sagittario aut Venere. signifies corruption of the air and rain from dew. If the Moon and the lord of its house are found to be increasing, the corruption will arise from an abundance of dew, if God wills it.

When the Sun enters the first minute of Scorpio, take the ascendant. If it is a watery sign and the Moon is also in a watery sign and Venus likewise, the beginning of the 20th degree of the minute will be rainy and the end of winter will be moist. If Venus is western and weak and the Moon and ascendant are in watery signs, the beginning and end will similarly be humid. Today, since Venus is under the rays of the Sun, as a woman under a man, it causes waters to descend. If Venus is eastern from the Sun, the beginning will be dry. But if the ascendant is not among the watery signs, nor is the Moon in a watery sign, the beginning of winter will be rainy and the latter part dry. And if the ascendant is fiery and its lord is in a watery sign, the season will be temperate, with neither much nor little rain, and will incline somewhat toward moisture and lightning. And if the ascendant is fiery and its lord is in a fiery sign, prolonged rains will be indicated for that year. And if the ascendant is fiery and its lord is in an airy sign, there will be little rain and many winds in that year. And if the lord of the hour is humid and dewy, the year will be good. And if it is dry, it will corrupt the year.And if the ascendant is an earthy sign and its lord is in a watery sign, the year will be good with much rain and dew. And if the lord of the hour is in a fiery sign and the lord is near an angle, there will be great drought in that year. And if the ascendant is watery and its lord is in an airy sign, there will be in that year much dew and winds and fog. And if the ascendant is fiery and its lord is in a watery sign, that quarter of the year will be very humid with little rain, or serenity will increase and rain will diminish. And if the ascendant is airy and its lord is in an earthy sign, it signifies many winds and little dew. Likewise, when the Sun conjoins in the ascendant with any of the three superior planets and any one of them is in the 1st house, rains are indicated in the first quarter of the month or year; similarly if it is in the 7th, it will be in the middle quarter of the year; similarly if in the 10th, there will be dew in three quarters of the month or year; similarly if in the 4th, that will occur at the end of the year; similarly in its opposition and in its square, especially in winter it hastens toward Sagittarius or Venus. Take rightly its signification and grant it in rains and abundances of waters. And likewise if it is in aestate, significat grandinem et fortem, hoc est cum fuerit coniunctio aut oppositio in signis terreis aut aquosis, hoc enim significat multitudinem pluviae affluentiae. Si autem fuerit in signis igneis, significabit bella, guerras, captivitates, caedes, incendia, 5 ignes et extirpationes vegetabilium. Si fuerit coniunctio sua in signo ventorum et quadrabit aliquis eorum aliquod signum terreum, significatio est ventorum et rugitus eorum et significat corruptionem fructuum et multitudinem tempestatum. Si vis scire horam, scito quando applicaverit Sol ad locum pluviae, qui est in quadrato, 10 et elongabitur, haec significatio quando Luna in ascendente vel opposito fuerit. Si dixerit quis ubi erit haec amplius, inspice coniunctionem planetarum. Si erit in ascendente, a parte orientis, si in medio caeli, a meridie, si in 7ª, in occidente, si in 4ª, in septentrione, super hoc funda et invenies Deo volente.

Gergis Philosophus. Liber de astronomiae disciplinae peritia.

« Georgius philosophus Antiochenus, incola Aegypti, ab eruditis viris patriae suae didicisse et in Aegyptum migrasse et ibi medicus fuisse dicitur. Eum in Aegypto Abu-s-Salt Umeia al-Magribi vidit » (Ibn-al-Kifti, ed. Lippert, p. 157). Vivebat itaque Gergis philosophus saec. XI. In mss. latinis ille variis modis nominatur : Gergis, Girgis, Jergis, Zergis, Jargus (Hyargus, Largus), Georgius. Archetypus Arabicus operis eius periit et duodecim tantum lineae ex heredio Gergis litterario ad nos pervenerunt. Duo tractatus astrologici huius auctoris ex mss. noti sunt : 1) De significatione septem planetarum in XII domibus (Codd. Par lat. 7332 ; Sorb. 980 ; Catal. Mss. Angl. II, p. II n. 6575 ; Amplon. Qu. 372, Ashmole 393), 2) De mansionibus lunae (codd. Mar. Magd. Oxf. 182^{b} ; Catal. Mss. Angl., II, p. II, n. 753) : qui cum Libro de astronomiae disciplinae peritia non congruunt. Praeterea in compilatione alchemica et in tractatu Alberti Magni, De mineralibus III, 14, Gergis philosophus commemoratur, tandem Lynn Thorndike (l. c.) duo opuscula nova eiusdem Gergis in summer, it signifies hail and a strong one, that is, when there is a conjunction or opposition in earth or water signs, for this signifies an abundance of rainfall. But if it occurs in fire signs, it will signify wars, conflicts, captivities, slaughters, fires, and the destruction of vegetation. If its conjunction occurs in an air sign and one of them forms a square with some earth sign, the signification is of winds and their roaring, and it signifies the corruption of fruits and a multitude of storms. If you wish to know the hour, know when the Sun applies to the place of rain, which is in the square, and will separate; this signification applies when the Moon is in the ascendant or its opposite. If someone asks where this will be most intense, examine the conjunction of the planets. If it is in the ascendant, it is from the east; if in the midheaven, from the south; if in the 7th, in the west; if in the 4th, in the north. Build upon this and you will find it, God willing.

15 When there is a great and severe drought, if you wish to know when it will rain upon the face of the earth, observe where the Head of the Serpent is, or the star called Azaphora. When one of these is in the house called aquatic, reckon the Moon itself. When it descends into a water house, rain will soon fall.

Gergis Philosophus. A Book on the Mastery of the Discipline of Astronomy.

*Georgius philosophus Antiochenus, a resident of Egypt, is said to have learned from the learned men of his homeland, migrated to Egypt, and practiced medicine there. Abu-l-Salt Umayya al-Maghribi encountered him in Egypt (Ibn al-Qifti, ed. Lippert, p. 157). Gergis philosophus therefore lived in the 11th century. In Latin manuscripts he is referred to by various names: Gergis, Girgis, Jergis, Zergis, Jargus (Hyargus, Largus), Georgius. The Arabic archetype of his work has perished, and only twelve lines from Gergis's literary legacy have come down to us. Two astrological treatises by this author are known from manuscripts: 1) On the Signification of the Seven Planets in the Twelve Houses (Codd. Par. lat. 7332; Sorb. 980; Catal. Mss. Angl. II, p. 11 n. 6575; Amplon. Qu. 372, Ashmole 393), 2) On the Lunar Mansions (codd. Mar. Magd. Oxf. 182ª; Catal. Mss. Angl., II, p. ñ, n. 753): these do not correspond with the Book on the Mastery of the Discipline of Astronomy. Furthermore, Gergis philosophus is mentioned in an alchemical compilation and in the treatise of Albertus Magnus, De mineralibus III, 14; and finally Lynn Thorndike (l. c.) cites two new short works of the same Gergis.

Librum de astronomiae disciplinae peritia a Gerardo Cremonensi translatum esse veri simile est.

Omnipotens Deus posuit naturas creaturarum et motus atque incessus earum in terra vinctis septem planetis discurrentibus secundum motus incessusque eorum in duodecim signis, et omnes creaturae pendent ex eis, quemadmodum ferrum pendet ex lapide 5 magnetis, et moventur in terra secundum quantitatem motionum planetarum in duodecim signis. Quicumque igitur voluerit habere notitiam huius tam ingentis atque praestantis scientiae, studeat ad hoc pertingere per agitationem partium eorum in duodecim signis per numerum ordinatum, in quo nullus error erit neque men- 10 dacium, deinde habeat notitiam earundem partium in praedictis signis. Sunt autem quinque partes, quarum prima dicitur domus, secunda regnum, tertia — terminus, quarta — triplex, quinta — figura vel facies.

De prima parte. Prima pars scilicet domus sic divi- 15 ditur : Leo est domus Solis, Cancer domus Lunae, Aries et Scorpio domus Martis, Taurus et Libra domus Veneris, Gemini et Virgo domus Mercurii, Sagittarius et Pisces domus Iovis, Capricornus et Aquarius domus Saturni.

De secunda parte. Pars secunda ideo dicitur regnum 20 quod Sol regnat in 18 gradu Arietis, Luna in 3 gradu Tauri, item caput Draconis in 3 gradu Geminorum, cauda vero in 3 gradu Sagittarii, Iuppiter regnat in 15 gradu Cancri, Mars in 28 gradu Capricorni, Saturnus in 21 gradu Librae, Venus in 27 gradu Piscium, Mercurius in 15 gradu Virginis. Sciendum est autem, quod omnes 25 planetae cadunt in oppositis regnorum suorum.

De tertia parte. Pars tertia ideo dicitur terminus quod omne signum dividitur in 5 partes secundum naturas planetarum. Quae divisio talis est : ex signo Arietis Iuppiter primum accipit 6 gradus, Venus alios 6, Mercurius 8, Mars 5, Saturnus 5 ; ex Tauro 30 Venus 8, Mercurius 6, Iuppiter 8, Mercurius 5, Mars 3 ; ex Geminis Mercurius 6, Iuppiter 6, Venus 5, Mars 7, Saturnus 6 ; ex Cancro Mars 7, Venus 6, Mercurius 6, Iuppiter 7, Saturnus 4 ; ex Leone Iuppiter 6, Venus 5, Saturnus 7, Mercurius 6, Mars 6 ; ex cites Girgith, Theorica de arte magica (cod. Amplon. Qu. 354) and Documenta Girgith fille Circes (Medieval Catalogue of St. Augustin's, Canterbury, 1545).

It is likely that the book on the discipline of astronomy was translated by Gerard of Cremona.

Almighty God has placed the natures of created things, and their motions and courses upon the earth, bound by the seven planets moving according to their motions and courses through the twelve signs, and all created things depend upon them, just as iron depends upon the lodestone, and they are moved upon the earth according to the measure of the movements of the planets through the twelve signs. Whoever therefore wishes to attain knowledge of this so great and excellent a science, let him strive to arrive at it through the examination of their parts in the twelve signs by an ordered number, in which there shall be no error nor falsehood; then let him have knowledge of the same parts in the aforesaid signs. Now there are five parts, of which the first is called the house, the second the domain, the third the term, the fourth — triplicity,

fifth figure or face.

On the first part. The first part, namely the house, is divided as follows: Leo is the house of the Sun, Cancer the house of the Moon, Aries and Scorpio the house of Mars, Taurus and Libra the house of Venus, Gemini and Virgo the house of Mercury, Sagittarius and Pisces the house of Jupiter, Capricorn and Aquarius the house of Saturn.

On the Second Part. The second part is called "regnum" (domain/exaltation degree) because the Sun reigns at the 18th degree of Aries, the Moon at the 3rd degree of Taurus, likewise the Head of the Dragon (Caput Draconis) at the 3rd degree of Gemini, and the Tail (Cauda Draconis) at the 3rd degree of Sagittarius, Jupiter reigns at the 15th degree of Cancer, Mars at the 28th degree of Capricorn, Saturn at the 21st degree of Libra, Venus at the 27th degree of Pisces, Mercury at the 15th degree of Virgo. It should be known, moreover, that all planets fall in the opposites of their own regnums (exaltation degrees).

On the Third Part. The third part is called "terminus" (term/bound) because every sign is divided into 5 parts according to the natures of the planets. This division is as follows: from Aries, Jupiter receives the first 6 degrees, Venus the next 6, Mercury 8, Mars 5, Saturn 5; from Taurus, Venus 8, Mercury 6, Jupiter 8, Mercury 5, Mars 3; from Gemini, Mercury 6, Jupiter 6, Venus 5, Mars 7, Saturn 6; from Cancer, Mars 7, Venus 6, Mercury 6, Jupiter 7, Saturn 4; from Leo, Jupiter 6, Venus 5, Saturn 7, Mercury 6, Mars 6; from Virgine Mercurius 7, Venus 10, Iuppiter 4, Mars 7, Saturnus 2; ex Libra Saturnus 6, Mercurius 8, Iuppiter 7, Venus 7, Mars 2; ex Scorpione Mars 7, Venus 4, Mercurius 8, Iuppiter 5, Saturnus 6; ex Sagittario Iuppiter 12, Venus 5, Mercurius 4, Saturnus 5, Mars 4; ex Capricorno Mercurius 7, Iuppiter 7, Venus 8, Saturnus 4, Mars 4; ex Aquario Mercurius 7, Venus 6, Iuppiter 7, Mars 5, Saturnus 5; ex Piscibus Venus 12, Iuppiter 4, Mercurius 3, Mars 9, Saturnus 2. Ita vero accipiendo tot gradus de unoquoque signo complet 30 gradus uniuscuiusque signi.

De quarta parte. Quarta pars ob hoc dicitur triplex, quod Aries Leo, Sagittarius haec tria signa sunt ignea, masculina orientalia, diurna; rectores trinitatis eorum per diem Sol, per noctem Iuppiter, eorumque particeps Saturnus. Taurus, Virgo, Capricornus sunt terrea, feminina, meridiana, nocturna; rectores trinitatis eorum per diem Venus, per noctem Luna, eorumque particeps per diem et noctem Mars. Gemini, Libra et Aquarius sunt aerea, occidentalia, diurna, masculina; rectores trinitatis eorum per diem Saturnus, per noctem Mercurius, eorumque particeps Iuppiter. Cancer, Scorpio et Pisces sunt aquosa, feminina, septentrionalia, nocturna; rectores trinitatis eorum per diem Venus, per noctem Mars, eorumque particeps per noctem et diem Luna.

De quinta parte. Quinta pars ut praefati sumus figura et facies vocatur, ideo scilicet quod omne signum dividitur in 3 partes, quae partes dicuntur facies. Prima pars signi Arietis datur Marti, 2 Soli, 3 Veneri; prima Tauri datur Mercurio, 2 Lunae, 3 Saturno; prima pars Geminorum datur Iovi, 2 Marti, 3 Soli; prima pars Cancri datur Veneri, 2 Mercurio, 3 Lunae; prima pars Leonis datur Saturno, 2 Iovi, 3 Marti; prima pars Virginis datur Soli, 2 Veneri, 3 Mercurio; prima pars Librae datur Lunae, 2 Saturno, 3 Iovi; prima pars Scorpionis datur Marti, 2 Soli, 3 Veneri; prima pars Sagittarii datur Mercurio, 2 Lunae, 3 Saturno; prima pars Capricorni datur Iovi, 2 Marti, 3 Soli; prima pars Aquarii datur Veneri, 2 Mercurio, 3 Lunae; prima pars Piscis datur Saturno, 2 Iovi, 3 Marti. Sic divide omnia signa per septem planetas secundum successiones eorum in circulo caeli, donec venias ad novissimum quidem signi Piscis, et invenies ipsam faciem esse Martis. In unaquaque vero facie sunt 10 gradus.

Virgo, Mercury 7, Venus 10, Jupiter 4, Mars 7, Saturn 2;

from Scorpio, Mars 7, Venus 4, Mercury 8, Jupiter 5, Saturn 6; from Sagittarius, Jupiter 12, Venus 5, Mercury 4, Saturn 5, Mars 4;
from Capricorn, Mercury 7, Jupiter 7, Venus 8, Saturn 4, Mars 4; from Aquarius, Mercury 7, Venus 6, Jupiter 7, Mars 5, Saturn 5;
from Pisces, Venus 12, Jupiter 4, Mercury 3, Mars 9, Saturn 2. By taking this many degrees from each sign in this manner, one completes the full 30 degrees of each sign.

On the fourth part. The fourth part is called triple for this reason: that Aries, Leo, and Sagittarius — these three signs — are fiery, masculine, eastern, and diurnal; the rulers of their triplicity by day are the Sun, by night Jupiter, and Saturn is their participant. Taurus, Virgo, and Capricorn are earthy, feminine, southern, and nocturnal; the rulers of their triplicity by day are Venus, by night the Moon, and their participant by day and night is Mars. Gemini, Libra, and Aquarius are airy, western, diurnal, and masculine; the rulers of their triplicity by day are Saturn, by night Mercury, and their participant is Jupiter. Cancer, Scorpio, and Pisces are watery, feminine, northern, and nocturnal; the rulers of their triplicity by day are Venus, by night Mars, and their participant by night and day is the Moon.

On the fifth part. The fifth part, as we have stated above, is called figura and facies, namely because every sign is divided into 3 parts, which parts are called facies. The first part of the sign of Aries is assigned to Mars, the 2nd to the Sun, the 3rd to Venus; the first of Taurus is assigned to Mercury, the 2nd to the Moon, the 3rd to Saturn; the first part of Gemini is assigned to Jupiter, the 2nd to Mars, the 3rd to the Sun; the first part of Cancer is assigned to Venus, the 2nd to Mercury, the 3rd to the Moon; the first part of Leo is assigned to Saturn, the 2nd to Jupiter, the 3rd to Mars; the first part of Virgo is assigned to the Sun, the 2nd to Venus, the 3rd to Mercury; the first part of Libra is assigned to the Moon, the 2nd to Saturn, the 3rd to Jupiter; the first part of Scorpio is assigned to Marts, the 2nd to the Sun, the 3rd to Venus; the first part of Sagittarius is assigned to Mercury, the 2nd to the Moon, the 3rd to Saturn; the first part of Capricorn is assigned to Jupiter, the 2nd to Mars, the 3rd to the Sun; the first part of Aquarius is assigned to Venus, the 2nd to Mercury, the 3rd to the Moon; the first part of Pisces is assigned to Saturn, the 2nd to Jupiter, the 3rd to Mars. Thus divide all the signs among the seven planets according to their succession in the circle of the heavens, until you come to the very last of the sign of Pisces, and you will find that same facies to be that of Mars. In each facies, moreover, there are 10 degrees.

7 Pisces, cod. 30 Scorpio, cod. 31 first part, cod.

De fortitudine et debilitate planetarum. Oportet te etiam scire fortitudinem atque debilitatem planetarum. Fortitudo planetarum est ut sint in domibus suis vel regnis aut terminis seu trinitatibus sive figuris et ut sint directi nec sub radiis Solis et ut sint in angulis vel in sequentibus angulorum et ut sint planetae superiores, hoc est Saturnus, Iuppiter et Mars orientales, Luna autem et Venus occidentales; Mercurius enim particeps est eorum tam in oriente, quam in occidente. Fortitudinis etiam eorum est ut sint in terminis aut in regnis aut in domibus bonorum planetarum, debilitas vero eorum est ut sint retrogradi et sub ardore Solis vel cum fuerint cum malis aut iunguntur eis, seu cum fuerint in domibus malorum aut in terminis sive in regnis eorum aut si ceciderint ab angulis vel a sequentibus angulorum.

De ascensione eorum. Scito autem, quod a capite Cancri usque ad finem Sagittarii sunt directa ad ascendendum, a capite vero Capricorni usque ad finem Geminorum sunt tortuosa. Nota praeterea, quod ex signis quaedam sunt mobilia, quaedam fixa, quaedam vero communia. Aries, Cancer, Libra, Capricornus sunt mobilia. Cum aliquid horum ingreditur Sol, mutatur tempus. Aries, cum ingressus in se fuerit Sol, mutat tempus ab hyeme scilicet in ver, dum ingressus fuerit Cancrum, mutatur tempus a vere in aestatem, in Libra mutatur aestas in autumpnum, in Capricorno mutatur autumpnus in hyemem. Fixa vero sunt Taurus, Leo, Scorpio, Aquarius. Nam cum Sol ingreditur Taurum, figitur ver; cum Leonem, aestas firmatur; cum Scorpionem, autumpni robor excerscit; cum Aquarium, hyemis asperitas acrius instat. Communia sunt Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius, Pisces: Sole enim existente in Geminis, medium signi est veris mediumque aestatis; cum in Virgine, medium signi est aestatis mediumque autumpni; cum in Sagittario, medium signi est autumpni mediumque hyemis, cum in Piscibus, medium signi est hyemis mediumque veris.

De aspectibus suis. Scire super hoc debes, quod planetae scilicet Saturnus, Iuppiter, Mars, Venus et Mercurius habent aspectus quibus se aspicientes commiscentur, similiter etiam quando iunguntur, potest etiam fieri ut sint vincti aut quadrantes, aut absentes, aut apparentes, aut directi, aut retrogradi, aut titubantes,

On the Strength and Weakness of the Planets. You must also know the strength and weakness of the planets. The strength of the planets consists in their being in their own houses, or domiciles, or terms, or triplicities, or figures, and in their being direct and not under the rays of the Sun, and in their being in the angles or in the signs following the angles, and in the superior planets — that is, Saturn, Jupiter, and Mars — being oriental, while the Moon and Venus are occidental; for Mercury is a participant with them both in the east and in the west. Their strength also consists in their being in the terms, domiciles, or houses of the benefic planets; their weakness, however, consists in their being retrograde and under the combustion of the Sun, or when they are with malefic planets or joined to them, or when they are in the houses of the malefics, or in their terms or domiciles, or if they have fallen from the angles or from the signs following the angles.

On Their Ascension. Know, moreover, that from the beginning of Cancer to the end of Sagittarius the signs rise directly, whereas from the beginning of Capricorn to the end of Gemini they rise obliquely. Note further that among the signs some are movable, some fixed, and some common. Aries, Cancer, Libra, and Capricorn are movable. When the Sun enters any of these, the season changes: when the Sun enters Aries, the season shifts from winter to spring; when it enters Cancer, the season changes from spring to summer; in Libra, summer turns to autumn; in Capricorn, autumn turns to winter. The fixed signs are Taurus, Leo, Scorpio, and Aquarius. For when the Sun enters Taurus, spring is established; when it enters Leo, summer is consolidated; when it enters Scorpio, the vigor of autumn intensifies; when it enters Aquarius, the harshness of winter presses on more sharply. The common signs are Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius, and Pisces: for when the Sun is in Gemini, the middle of the sign marks the midpoint of spring and the midpoint of summer; when it is in Virgo, the middle of the sign marks the midpoint of summer and the midpoint of autumn; when it is in Sagittarius, the middle of the sign marks the midpoint of autumn and the midpoint of winter; when it is in Pisces, the middle of the sign marks the midpoint of winter and the midpoint of spring.

On their aspects. You should know about this, that the planets, namely Saturn, Jupiter, Mars, Venus, and Mercury, have aspects by which those that look upon one another are united; likewise also when they are joined, it can also happen that they are bound or in square, or absent, or apparent, or direct, or retrograde, or wavering,

Diverse principles concerning all these matters have been established by the wise. And know whether a planet is weak, or ascending, or retrograde, or combusted, or when they are impeded by malefics among themselves, or have joined themselves to malefics, or are in their houses, or terms, or domiciles, or descensions — that is, in the opposites of their domiciles — or with the rulers of their triplicities, or in the opposites of their own houses or domiciles, or if they have fallen from the angles, or are in the opposites of the houses or domiciles of their enemies, or if they are joined to their enemies or to other malefics, or if they are joined to the Sun, or are in opposition to it. And know that the house opposite to a house is called aluabil, and the opposite of a domicile is called athoboth.Know also that you must understand especially the progression of the Moon, for judgments in all matters depend upon the ascending sign, its lord, the Sun, the Moon, and the lords of their houses. The first impediment of the Moon is when she is combusted by the Sun, which is a condition announcing the destruction of questions, unless the question concerns a fugitive, a thief, or something buried or hidden that ought to remain concealed — for this is proper to it; she is impeded a second time when she is in opposition to the Sun; a third time when she is joined to malefics or flooded by their rays; a fourth time when she travels alone, that is, when she is joined to no planet. Her advancement occurs when she increases in light and in number, and when the same applies to her as we have said of the other planets.And know that judgments in all questions proceed in three ways: first, that you know for what purpose the querent or questioner has come to you, or what he asks about; second, that you know the cause of that question, by which cause it was put forth; third, that you know what end it will have and what will come of it hereafter. And when you wish to know this, begin first by examining the planet that announces the thought, intention, or general subject of the question — that is, look to the lord of the ascending sign and to the Moon and to the lord of the house's lot, and whichever of these you find to be the strongest, take it as the significator, that is, the announcer of the judgment; then look to the lord of the house of that same significator to determine its nature, and know that the same question is thus—

Rursum si volueris scire finem illius, scito etiam, cui planetarum eadem stella annuntiatrix iungitur, et scito, quod secundum significationem ipsius erit interrogatio in omnibus et talem finem habebit. Et ecce scribam tibi prout melius potuero breviter significationem septem planetarum et duodecim signorum, ut hoc levius intelligere quaeras, si Deus voluerit.

Exemplum. Erat ascendens signum Tauri 10 gradus cuius domina est Venus et haec erat in Cancro in trinitate sua et erat Luna, quae est domina domus Veneris, tunc in Libra non in propria domo, nec in regno, nec in trinitate sua, nec in ulla portione ex praedictis quinque planetarum partibus superius scriptis. Dominus quoque partis domus erat Saturnus et hic erat in Leone, in quo ut diximus nullam habebat portionem. Erat igitur annuntiatrix sententiae Venus, quae erat in Cancro in trinitate sua, aspiciens dominam domus suae, id est Lunam, quae erat tunc in Libra, et locus Lunae erat sextus ab ascendente et a loco annuntiatricis, id est Veneris, quartus, et ipse dicitur locus parentum. Sexta autem domus infirmitatum vocatur. Luna vero significat matres, quapropter agnovi eum interrogasse de infirmitate matris et dolore quem habebat. Cum ergo voluissem scire cuius generis infirmitatem pateretur, aspexi Lunam, a quo planetarum separaretur. Separabatur autem a Saturno. Agnovi ergo eam dolorem pati frigidum, siccum secundum naturam Saturni. Et cum voluissem scire in quo membro hoc pateretur, aspexi in quo signo erat Saturnus. Erat autem Saturnus in signo Leonis in initio eiusdem signi. Proinde agnovi eam pati hoc in summitate stomachi. Leo enim accipit de homine cor, stomachum et intestina. Rursum cum vellem scire exitum huius rei, aspexi Lunam quae significabat de hoc cui planetarum iungebatur. Iungebatur autem Veneri. Agnovi ergo eam sanandam a the question, according to the nature of the planet itself and its signification, and the house in which it is located, will reveal to you everything about which you are inquiring. But if you wish to know from what point the question itself took its beginning, look at the announcing star which we mentioned above, from which of the planets it has separated, and know that everything which has passed in judgment was according to the nature and signification of that same planet from which the announcer separates, if God wills. Again, if you wish to know the end of it, know also to which of the planets that same announcing star is joining, and know that the question will proceed in all things according to the signification of that planet and will have such an end. And behold, I shall write for you, as briefly and as well as I can, the signification of the seven planets and the twelve signs, so that you may seek to understand this more easily, if God wills.

Example. The ascendant was the sign of Taurus at 10 degrees, whose lady is Venus, and she was in Cancer in her triplicity, and the Moon, which is the lady of the house of Venus, was then in Libra — not in her own house, nor in her domicile, nor in her triplicity, nor in any portion of the aforesaid five planetary parts written above. The lord of the Part of the house was Saturn, and he was in Leo, in which, as we said, he had no portion. Therefore the announcer of the judgment was Venus, who was in Cancer in her triplicity, aspecting the lady of her house, that is the Moon, who was then in Libra; and the place of the Moon was the sixth from the ascendant, and from the place of the announcer, that is Venus, the fourth, and that place is called the place of parents. The sixth house, however, is called the house of illness. The Moon indeed signifies mothers; wherefore I knew that he had asked about the illness of his mother and the pain she was suffering. When therefore I wished to know what kind of illness she was enduring, I looked at the Moon, from which of the planets she was separating. She was separating from Saturn. I therefore knew that she was suffering a cold, dry pain according to the nature of Saturn. And when I wished to know in which member she was suffering this, I looked at the sign in which Saturn was located.Now Saturn was in the sign of Leo, at the beginning of that same sign. Therefore I knew that she was suffering this at the top of the stomach. For Leo governs the heart, stomach, and intestines of the human body. Again, when I wished to know the outcome of this matter, I looked at the Moon, which signified this matter, to see to which of the planets she was joining. She was joining Venus. I therefore knew that she would be healed from bonitate Veneris. Item cum voluissem scire spatium quo sanaretur, aspexi quot gradus coniunctionis essent inter Lunam et Venerem. Erat itaque tunc Luna in Libra in 10 gradu et Venus in 15 gradu signi Cancri erantque inter utrasque 5 gradus. Dixi ergo esse sa-

Et si Luna iungeretur Saturno vel Marti, dicerem quod moreretur post definitum dierum numerum, nisi Deus voluerit. Similiter aspice in omnibus
10 causis quod ad hoc deveniet omne de quo interrogaveris et secundum hoc erit et pone terminos in hoc secundum quod iussi tibi, si Deus voluerit. Nam si fuisset Venus in loco Lunae, dicerem quod interrogaret de muliebribus, et si fuisset Sol in eodem loco, dicerem quod interrogaret de patre, et si ibi fuisset Mars, dicerem quod inter-
15 rogaret de germano aut de filio vel de genero. Et si fuisset Mercurius ibi, dicerem quod interrogaret de filio fratris vel sororis. Quod si fuisset Mercurius tunc masculus, esset responsio vera; sin autem mutarem sententiam, similiter mutatur sententia in luminaribus, id est in Sole et Luna, quod Sol in die masculus est, 20 in nocte femina et Luna aeque in nocte masculus, in die femina. Et si fuisset ibi Iuppiter, dicerem quod interrogaret de filio suo. Et si fuisset ibi Saturnus, dicerem quod interrogaret de servo. Et si fuisset tunc Sol in medio caeli, dicerem quod interrogaret de rege. Et si ibi fuisset Mercurius dicerem, quod interrogaret de scrip-
25 turis vel de aliqua sapientia. Et si fuisset Sol in uno ab ascendente, dicerem quod interrogaret de aliquo quod vidit in sompniis. Et si volueris scire solutionem eiusdem sompnii, aspice a quo planetarum separatus sit Iuppiter vel quis planetarum separatur ab eo, et scito, quod secundum naturam eiusdem planetae erit sompnium. Sic
30 aspice in omnibus quae interrogantur, quoniam secundum significationem eiusdem planetae erunt, si Deus voluerit. Deinde aspici planetam qui tibi annuntiavit sententiam: si fuerit orientalis, erit aetate iuvenis ille de quo interrogaris, si de homine agitur. Si vero de alio quolibet fuerit interrogatio, erit illud recens. Et si fuerit

by the beneficence of Venus. Likewise, when I wished to know the period in which she would be healed, I examined how many degrees of conjunction there were between the Moon and Venus. At that time the Moon was in Libra at the 10th degree and Venus at the 15th degree of the sign Cancer, and there were 5 degrees between them. I therefore said that she would be healed after 5 days, since the Moon was clearly in a movable sign. For if it were in a common sign I would say that she would be healed after 5 months; if it were in a fixed sign, I would say after 5 years. And if the Moon were joined to Saturn or Mars, I would say that she would die after the determined number of days, unless God wills otherwise. Likewise, observe in all cases that everything you have inquired about will come to this conclusion, and it shall be so accordingly; and set the terms in this matter according to what I have instructed you, if God wills. For if Venus had been in the place of the Moon, I would say that the querent asks about feminine matters; and if the Sun had been in that same place, I would say that the querent asks about the father; and if Mars had been there, I would say that the querent asks about a brother, or a son, or a son-in-law. And if Mercury had been there, I would say that the querent asks about the son of a brother or sister. But if Mercury had then been masculine, the answer would be true; if not, however, I would change my judgment. Likewise the judgment changes with respect to the luminaries — that is, the Sun and the Moon — in that the Sun is masculine by day and feminine by night, and the Moon is equally masculine by night and feminine by day.

And if Jupiter had been there, I would say that the querent was asking about his son. And if Saturn had been there, I would say that the querent was asking about a servant. And if the Sun had then been in the midheaven, I would say that the querent was asking about a king. And if Mercury had been there, I would say that the querent was asking about writings or some matter of learning. And if the Sun had been in the first house from the ascendant, I would say that the querent was asking about something he had seen in dreams. And if you wish to know the interpretation of that same dream, observe from which of the planets Jupiter is separating, or which of the planets is separating from it, and know that the dream will be in accordance with the nature of that same planet. Thus examine all matters that are asked about, for they will be in accordance with the signification of that same planet, if God wills. Then examine the planet that announced the judgment to you: if it is oriental, the person about whom you are asked will be young in age, if the question concerns a person. But if the question concerns any other matter, that matter will be recent. And if the planet is occidental, that person will be old, unless the announcer is the Moon. If the Moon is the announcer, she signifies in the beginning of the month youthfulness and in the middle of the month signifies the middle of a man's life, and at the end signifies old age. And behold, I announce to you what I promised concerning the signification of the twelve houses and the seven planets. Therefore examine diligently and consider well what is said, so that through this you may be easily introduced to the understanding of all questions by the command of the Almighty, whose is wisdom and knowledge, who knows all things before they come to pass.

On the course of the planets through the twelve signs and on their natures, and on the twenty-eight mansions of the Moon, and on the exaltation and humiliation, strength, and weakness of the seven planets. planets.

<On Aries>. Aries, which in Arabic is called alhebx or alhamal, is an eastern sign of fiery nature, hot, dry, masculine, and diurnal. It rises in one and a half hours and a sixth part of an hour. It sets in two and a half hours and a sixth part of an hour. It has two mansions and a third part of a mansion, namely the Horns of Aries or the Belly, and a third part of the Pleiades. Likewise it governs in man the head, face, eyes, nostrils, ears, mouth, and all that belongs to the head. In this sign is the altitudo, that is the exaltation of the Sun, the imitas, that is the humiliation of Saturn, and the infirmaria, that is the debility of Venus. Here is the casa, that is the mansion of Mars, who in Arabic is called alahmar or marreh, whose star it is, and it is red, fiery, hot, and dry. He presides over heat, whereas the Sun is masculine by day and feminine by night, a pair of greater power — most malefic except for those whose planet he is. For he is the master and leader of battles; his hour is generally evil, except that at its end, the one who first goes forth to battle shall conquer. He remains in each sign 45 days, that is one month and a half; he traverses the Zodiac in 540 days, namely one year and 175 days, which comprise 5 months and 25 days. When he returns, he remains in the first sign to which he returns for 6 months, that is half a year, and in Taurus, Leo, Scorpio, and Aquarius for seven months, making 13 months in all, that is one year and one month. The first hour of the day of Mars belongs to him, and he is feared by all. He signifies brothers and the most wicked of men, robbers who scatter and plunder the property of others on roads and paths, kings, counts, and commanders who wage wars; and he governs things accomplished through fire, fine iron, lances and swords, and all fine glassware, and whatever grows from the earth — namely everything that is black and hard, thorns, and thistles; and among four-footed animals, pigs, wolves, and all wild beasts; and among garments, every red garment; and among stones, every precious red stone.

De Scorpione. Scorpius, qui arabice dicitur alacrab, est septetrionale id est australe signum aquosae naturae, frigidum et molle, noctuale, femininum. Oritur duabus horis et tertia parte unius horae. Occidit hora et semis et sexta parte horae. Habet duas mansiones et tertiam unius mansionis, videlicet duas partes Coronae et cor Scorpionis et duas tertias Aculei. Habet de homine posteriora et anteriora, id est ilia et nates et vesicam, testiculos et veretrum. Hic est infimitas, id est descensio Lunae et Veneris. Similiter casa, id est mansio Martis. Cetera sicut in Ariete ut supra.

De Tauro et eius stella quae est Venus. Taurus, quod arabice dicitur athor, est meridianum id est africale signum terreae naturae, frigidum et siccum, noctuale, femininum. Oritur hora et dimidia et sexta parte horae. Occidit 2 horis et 3 parte horae. Habet 2 mansiones et tertiam mansionis scilicet 2 tertias Pliadum et retrogradum et 2 tertias natium Tauri. Habet de homine cervicem et guttur. In hoc signo est altitudo, id est exaltatio Lunae, infimitas, id est occasus Martis. Hic est casa, id est mansio Veneris, quae arabice dicitur azohra, cuius est stella, et est alba et aquatica. Quae est etiam frigida et humida et praeest pluviae, bona, femina, cum omnibus non impar, minoris potestatis, cuius hora bona et utilis plerumque bona prima die Veneris sua. On Scorpio. Scorpio, which in Arabic is called alacrab, is a northern — that is, southern — sign of watery nature, cold and soft, nocturnal, feminine. It rises in two hours and one third of an hour. It sets in one hour and a half and one sixth of an hour. It has two mansions and one third of a mansion, namely two parts of Corona and the heart of Scorpio and two thirds of Aculeus. It governs in the human body the posterior and anterior parts, that is, the flanks and buttocks and bladder, the testicles and the penis. This is the depression — that is, the fall — of the Moon and Venus. Likewise the house, that is, the mansion of Mars. The rest is as in Aries as above. On Taurus and its star which is Venus. Taurus, which in Arabic is called athor, is a southern — that is, African — sign of earthly nature, cold and dry, nocturnal, feminine. It rises in one hour and a half and one sixth of an hour. It sets in 2 hours and one third of an hour. It has 2 mansions and one third of a mansion, namely two thirds of the Pleiades and the Retrograde and 2 thirds of the Tail of Taurus. It governs in the human body the neck and throat. In this sign is the altitude — that is, the exaltation — of the Moon; the depression — that is, the fall — of Mars. This is the house, that is, the mansion of Venus, which in Arabic is called azohra, whose star it is, and it is white and watery.Which is also cold and moist and presides over 20 rain, benefic, feminine, not unequal to all, of lesser power, whose hour is good and useful, generally the first good hour on the day of Venus being its own. It remains in each sign for 25 days, in the Zodiac for 300, in which there are 10 months; when it returns, it stays in one sign for 4 months and 6 days and there are 14 months, that is, a year and 2 months and 6 days as aforesaid. It signi- 25 fies joy and delight, eating and drinking and the affairs of women, and among metals those produced by fire: gold, silver, and every feminine ornament, and among precious stones every white precious stone, and especially that which is found in water or draws its origin from water, such as crystal, and among fish 30 or birds: trout and all those that follow the waters, such as the birds called in the Chaldean tongue cathiralme, that is, water birds, and among the fruits of the earth every moist fruit of good fragrance and flavor, and every pigment and fragrant ointment, and among four-footed animals deer, and among garments silk and Greek cloth. 35 On Libra. Libra, which in Arabic is called elmizen, is a western sign of windy nature, hot and soft, airy, diurnal, masculine. It rises in 2 hours and a half and a sixth part of an hour. It sets Hic est similiter casa, id est, mansio Veneris. Cetera ut supra sicut in Tauro.

De Geminis et eius stella quae est Mercurius. Gemini, quod arabice dicitur algeuze vel atheumen, est occidentale signum ventosae naturae, calidum et molle, aerinum, 10 diurnum, masculinum. Oritur hora et deunce. Occidit 2 horis et 12 parte horae. Habet 2 mansiones et tertiam mansionis videlicet tertiam narium Tauri et salutationum, quae arcus Orionis vocatur, et bracchium Cancri. Habet de homine humeros, lacertos, bracchia, manus. In hoc signo est infimitas, id est occasus Iovis. Hic est casa, 15 id est mansio Mercurii, qui arabice dicitur alchecib, et est viridis et igneus, aerius, aquaticus, terreus, mas cum maribus, femina cum feminis, qui praeest siccitati, cuius hora a capite usque ad medium utilis. Moratur in unoquoque signo 28 dies, Zodiacum 336 dies, id est 11 menses et 6 dies; quando redit, manet in uno signo in 20 quo redit 2 menses et 4 dies et sunt 13 menses, id est annus et unus mensis, et insuper 10 dies. Hora prima die Mercurii eius est, par minoris potestatis, malus. Significat libros vel scripturam et arithmeticam et geometriam et astronomiam et omnem sapientiam et est confectae naturae. Significat vero ex rebus quae fiunt per 25 ignem: argentum quod appellatur vivum, et ex lapidibus pretiosis lapides onychinos et ex quadrupedibus asinos, lepores, et ex lupinis feris vulpes et catos agrestes, et ex vestimentis omne varium indumentum.

De Virgine. Virgo, quod arabice dicitur alahadre vel azum- 30 bule, est meridianum, id est africale signum terreae naturae, frigidum et siccum, noctuale, femininum. Oritur 2 horis et dimidia et 6 parte horae. Occidit hora et 3 parte horae. Habet 2 mansiones et tertiam mansionis videlicet tertiam Conversionis et Latrantem et Cacumen expoliatum. Habet de homine scapulas, costas et ven- 35 trem. Hic est infirmitas, id est occasus Veneris, infirmaria, id est debilitas Iovis. Hic est cassa, id est mansio similiter Mercurii. one hour and a third part of an hour, as Virgo. It has 2 mansions and a third of a mansion, namely the Recidivum and the Statera and the third of the Crown. It governs in the human body the lower ribs and the lower abdomen and the loin and the lower kidneys. This is the exaltation, that is, the rising of Saturn, the depression, that is, the fall of the Sun and the depression of Mars. This is likewise the house, that is, the mansion of Venus. The rest as above, as in Taurus.

On Gemini and its star, which is Mercury. Gemini, which in Arabic is called algeuze or atheumen, is a western sign of airy nature, warm and soft, aerial, diurnal, masculine. It rises in one hour and eleven-twelfths. It sets in 2 hours and a twelfth part of an hour. It has 2 mansions and a third of a mansion, namely the third of the nostrils of Taurus and of the salutations, which is called the bow of Orion, and the arm of Cancer. It governs in the human body the shoulders, the upper arms, the forearms, and the hands. In this sign is the depression, that is, the fall of Jupiter. This is the house, that is, the mansion of Mercury, who in Arabic is called alchecib, and is green and fiery, aerial, aquatic, earthy, masculine among males, feminine among females, who presides over dryness, whose hour from the beginning to the middle is favorable. It remains in each sign 28 days, traversing the Zodiac in 336 days, that is, 11 months and 6 days; when it returns, it stays in the one sign to which it returns for 2 months and 4 days, and these make 13 months, that is, one year and one month, and in addition 10 days. The first hour of Wednesday belongs to it, of lesser power, malefic. It signifies books or writing and arithmetic and geometry and astronomy and all wisdom, and it is of a composite nature.It truly signifies among things produced by fire the metal called quicksilver, and among precious stones the onyx stones, and among four-footed animals donkeys and hares, and among lupine wild beasts foxes and wildcats, and among garments all variegated clothing.

On Virgo. Virgo, which in Arabic is called alahadre or azumbule, is a meridional, that is to say southern sign of earthy nature, cold and dry, nocturnal, feminine. It rises in 2 and a half hours and 6 parts of an hour. It sets in one hour and 3 parts of an hour. It has 2 mansions and a third of a mansion, namely the third of the Conversion, the Barking one, and the Stripped Summit. Of the human body it governs the shoulders, ribs, and belly. Here is the infirmity, that is the fall of Venus; the infirmary, that is the debility of Jupiter. Here likewise is the house, that is the mansion of Mercury. The rest is as in Gemini.

On Cancer and its star, which is the Moon. Cancer, which in Arabic is called zaratan, is a southern, that is to say northern sign of watery nature, cold and soft, nocturnal, feminine. It rises in 2 hours and 12 parts of an hour. It sets in one hour and a deunx. It has 2 mansions and a third of a mansion, namely the Aspersion, the Summit, and the third of the Forehead of Leo. Of the human body it governs the chest and the lower parts of the heart, liver, and stomach. Here is the altitude, that is the exaltation of Jupiter; the infirmity, that is the fall of Mars; the infirmary, that is the debility of Saturn. Here is the house, that is the mansion of the Moon, which in Arabic is called alchamar, whose star it is; it is of green color, of watery nature, cold and soft like tin and lead, feminine by day, masculine by night, a messenger of kings, favorable among the favorable, harmful among the adverse. For it stirs up quarrels and disputes among the wicked and dons the garb of war when it is in conjunction with the war planets. Indeed by day, when it is joined with Saturn or with Mars, it is a day of quarrels and wars in whatever house it may be, and it fears Saturn and Mars. The first hour of the day of the Moon is its own. It remains in each sign for 2 nights and 3 parts of one night, that is 8 hours, and traverses the Zodiac in 28 days. It signifies mothers and noble men, favorable messengers, prosperous counsels, noble and sweet women, betrothals, and every act of purification and kindling, and the revealers of all counsels. It governs what is pertains to fire, silver, and what grows from the earth, such as every soft herb of pleasant taste; among livestock, sheep and oxen; among garments, every white and beautiful garment and whatsoever is fair and useful labors and irrigations.

On Leo and its star, which is the Sun. Leo, which in Arabic is called alaceth, is an eastern sign of fiery nature, hot, dry, diurnal, masculine. It rises in 2 hours and 3 parts of an hour. It sets in one hour and a half and 6 parts of an hour. It has 2 mansions and 30, and the third mansion, namely 2 thirds of the Forehead and the Anvil and 2 thirds of the Turning. It governs in the human body the top of the spleen and the top of the stomach and heart, and likewise the intestines. This is the infirmary, that is, the debility of Saturn. This is the house, that is, the mansion of the Sun, which in Arabic is called axaraz, whose star it is; and it is red in color in the morning, white at midday, blue in the evening; and it is fiery, hot, dry, masculine by day, feminine by night, of greater power in equal measure, intemperate in heat, whose hour is most often ill-omened and useless. The first hour of its dominical day is the most powerful; it is malefic toward all the planets. It remains in each sign for 30 days, that is, one month of 10 hours and a half. It traverses the Zodiac in 365 days and 6 hours, and in the 4th year it has 366 days. It signifies kings and parents and celestial knowledge concerning God Almighty and his angels and his kingdom; and among earthly things it governs those that are produced by fire and those that are not — namely gold — and among precious stones every hyacinthine red stone and every rare precious stone, that is, one which is difficult to find on account of the greatness of its value, and everything that is beautiful to behold; and among men, kings; and among four-footed beasts, horses; and every finest conveyance; and among garments, whatever is of the finest quality.

On Sagittarius and its star Jupiter. Sagittarius, which in Arabic is called alchaoz, is an eastern sign of fiery nature, hot, dry, diurnal, masculine. It rises in 2 hours and 12/15 parts of an hour. It sets in one hour and eleven-twelfths. It has 2 mansions and a third of one mansion, namely the third of Aculeus, and Commoditates and Regio. It governs in the human body the thighs, hips, and legs. This is the house, that is, the mansion of Jupiter, who in Arabic is called almuxtari, and is of cerulean color, of earthy nature, who presides over the winds, masculine by day, feminine by night, temperate, pleasant, not unequal to greater power, whose hour is most favorable and benefits merchants, and is the judge of the planets. It dwells in each sign for one full year, traversing the Zodiac in 12 years, in which there are 4381 days. When it returns, it remains in the sign to which it returns for 4 months, making 12 years and additionally 4 months. The first hour of Jupiter's day belongs to it. It is truly airy, warm, and gentle. Its color is a mixed cerulean, neither white nor black. It signifies noble men, princes and powers, the wise, judges and servants of God, and true faith, simplicity, humility, and good repute.Among things produced by fire, it governs all tin and lead, and among herbs all those fragrant plants proper to the planet and every precious medicament and ointment, and among four-footed animals sheep and deer, and among garments fine wool and every precious vestment, and among stones every stone of cerulean color.

On Pisces. Pisces, which in Arabic is called alhoc, is a southern 35 — that is, northern — sign of watery nature, cold, soft, nocturnal, feminine. It rises in an hour and a half, and sets likewise in an hour

5 curii. Hic est similiter casa, id est mansio Jovis. Cetera ut in Sagittario.

De Capricorno et eius stella Saturno. Capricornus, qui arabice dicitur algedi, est meridianum et africale signum terreae naturae, frigidum, siccum, noctuale, femininum.
10 Oritur hora et deunce. Occidit 2 horis et 12 parte horae. Habet 2 mansiones et tertiam mansionis. Prima est Fortuna decollans, secunda Fortuna deglutiens et tertia pars Fortunae Fortunarum. Habet de homine genua. Hic est casa, id est mansio Saturni, qui arabice dicitur almuchatil, et nigri coloris est et est de vento et 15 frigidior omnibus planetis, mas die, femina nocte, par maioris potestatis, malus, sed bonus his quorum planeta est, hora eius asperrima et inutilis plerumque, sed in eo qui primus exierit proeliaturus non erit. Moratur in quocumque signo 30 menses, per Zodiacum 30 annis aut quibus sunt 360 menses et sunt ibi 10957 dies
20 et 12 horae. Saturnus vero est frigidus et siccus et nigri coloris et significat hereditates, servos et ancillas, senes et homines innobiles, omnem dolum et iram et tristitiam et ceteram malitiam. Habet ex rebus quae fiunt per ignem : ferrum ferruginatum et ferruginem, et habet ex lapidibus omnem lapidem nigrum sicut est adamas, 25 et ex herbis omnem herbam fatuam id est nullius saporis, et ex quadrupedibus canes venatores et omnem animantem quae sub terra habitat, et de indumentis quicquid est nigri coloris, similiter est de iumentis.

De Aquario. Aquarius, qui arabice dicitur adalu, est oc-
30 cidentale signum ventosae naturae, aereum, calidum, molle, diurnum, masculum. Oritur hora et dimidia et 6 parte horae. Occidit 2 horis et dimidia et 6 parte horae. Habet 2 mansiones et tertiam mansionis videlicet 2 tertias Fortunae Fortunarum et Fortunam tabernaculorum et 2 tertias Effusionis praecedentis. Habet de 35 homine tibias usque ad calcaneum. Hic est infirmaria Solis, id est debilitas eius, hic est similiter casa, id est mansio Saturni. Reliqua omnia ut supra in Capricorno.

and a half. It has 2 mansions and a third part of a mansion, namely the third part of the preceding Effusion, and the subsequent Effusion, and the Belly of the Fish. It governs in the human body the feet and heels. Here is the exaltation, that is, the elevation of Venus, and the depression and infirmity, that is, the debility of Mer-5cury. Here likewise is the house, that is, the domicile of Jupiter. The rest as in Sagittarius.

On Capricorn and its star Saturn,

Capricorn, which in Arabic is called algedi, is a southern and African sign of earthy nature, cold, dry, nocturnal, feminine.
10 It rises in an hour and eleven-twelfths. It sets in 2 hours and 12 parts of an hour. It has 2 mansions and a third part of a mansion. The first is the Fortune of the Beheaded, the second is the Fortune of the Swallower, and the third part is the Fortune of Fortunes. It governs in the human body the knees. Here is the house, that is, the domicile of Saturn, who in Arabic is called almuchatil; he is of black color, and is associated with wind and 15 is colder than all the planets, masculine by day, feminine by night, of greater power in equal measure, malefic, but beneficial to those whose planet he is; his hour is harshest and generally unfavorable, yet one who goes forth first to battle shall not be defeated. He dwells in each sign for 30 months, passing through the Zodiac in 30 years, which amounts to 360 months, comprising 10,957 days
20 and 12 hours. Saturn is cold and dry and of black color, and signifies inheritances, male and female slaves, the elderly and men of low birth, all deceit and anger and sorrow and every other form of malice.He governs among things produced by fire: wrought iron and rust; and among stones, every black stone such as the diamond;
25 and among herbs, every insipid herb, that is, one of no flavor; and among four-footed animals, hunting dogs and every creature that dwells beneath the earth; and among garments, whatever is of black color; and likewise among beasts of burden.

On Aquarius. Aquarius, which in Arabic is called adalu, is a western sign of windy nature, airy, warm, soft, diurnal, masculine. It rises in one and a half hours and a sixth part of an hour. It sets in two and a half hours and a sixth part of an hour. It has 2 mansions and a third of a mansion, namely 2 thirds of the Fortune of Fortunes and the Fortune of Tabernacles and 2 thirds of the preceding Effusion. It governs in man the shins down to the heel. This is the infirmary of the Sun, that is, the place of its weakness; likewise this is the house, that is, the mansion of Saturn. All other matters are as above in Capricorn.

5 Leg. inverso pro et verso ?

On the Course of the Dragon through the Zodiac. The Dragon remains in each sign for one year and 9 months, and traverses the entire Zodiac in 21 years; and in each month it covers one degree and a half and 80 parts of one degree. Its length spans seven signs, moving retrograde through each sign in reverse order, and it has 4 stars in its head and 3 in its tail. Its course is above the Zodiac, being more elevated and prominent than it. It therefore has seven nodes in its body. The head and its first 3 nodes, in whatever sign they fall, constitute the house of good fortune for any person whatsoever. And its 3 nodes together with the tail, in whatever sign they fall, constitute the house of all misfortune and not of good fortune, for any person whatsoever. When therefore the Moon is in the head and the Sun in the tail, or the Sun in the head and the Moon in the tail, then there is an eclipse, that is, a failing of them both; for this occurs when the Moon is on the 14th or 15th day, or when the Moon is 29 days old, or when the Moon is beneath the line of the Sun or beneath the line of the Mo-however.

APPENDIX.

EXCERPTS FROM MANUSCRIPT I (BIBL. ACAD. SCIENT. XX AA-II).

Variant readings on the poem of Ioannis Camateri.
On the Zodiacal Circle. 95
From the Books of the Mysteries of Apomasar.
2. On the fact that when Saturn conjoins Jupiter, if it should happen that someone is born and has the sign in which such a conjunction occurs ascending or at midheaven, such a person will become a great king. 96
3. On the fact that if the three superior planets come together and the Sun aspects them, they produce great kings. . .
6. On the success of rebellion. . . . . .
7. On what the minor conjunctions signify, namely those of Mars and the Sun and Venus, of Mercury and the Moon. 97
8. On the conjunction of Saturn and Jupiter in Aries. . . 97
9. On the twelve places. 98
10. On clothing. 98
11. On foster children. 98
12. On the fact that the signification of the zodiac signs is more dominant than the signification of the stars, and that when the twelfth house is afflicted by a malefic placed therein, the feet are harmed even if the signs signifying the legs and feet are well-aspected, and that sometimes Aries also signifies the feet 99
13. On the matters signified by Saturn, Jupiter, Mars, the Sun, and Venus. 100
14. On a certain outcome that seemed extraordinary. . . . 100
15. On when, with neither the releaser nor the apheta found in the nativity, people become long-lived, and when they do not reach the minimum years of Venus, and when
